NAVY OFFICIALS HAVE "GAS ATTACK" AT HOME

Washington, May 8.—Rear Admiral Benson and other high navy officials experienced the sensations of a gas attack when a film, showing a certain naval experiment, caught fire during its projection. The room in the State, War and Navy Building devoted to experimental work instantly filled with a dense, choking smoke.

The film, the only one in existence on the subject, was totally destroyed. If the experiment is to be recorded the work will have to be "shot" again.

GERMANY'S CODE NOW SOLVED

New York Attorney-General Has Translated Bernstorff's Berlin Correspondence

By International News Service.

Albany, N. Y., May 8.—The code used by the German Foreign Office to communicate with Count von Bernstorff when he was directing German activities in the United States is now an open book in the possession of the government.

Through the efforts of Attorney-General Merton E. Lewis of New York, who conducted the investigation which led to the execution of Hole Pasha for treason in Paris, the Bernstorff code has been deciphered, reconstructed and turned over to the Federal authorities.

In addition to the code Lewis has furnished Washington with a complete index of names and subjects involved in the investigation of the Hugo Schmidt-Deutsches Bank negotiations; a summary of the inquiry made into the wool activities of German agents, and the special report on remittances by the Berlin Foreign

QUARTERLY REPORT BY DRAFTEES

Crowder Wants Money for Frequent Registration of Men Coming to Conscription Age

By International News Service.

Washington, May 8.—The necessity for quarterly registration of men who become twenty-one, if the demand for men increases, was impressed upon the House Military Affairs Committee today by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

He asked for an appropriation of $15,000,000 to cover the work of his department during the next fiscal year. Some of the items were made larger than seemed absolutely necessary, because of the possibility that quarterly registration will have to be resorted to, he said.

Last year a total of $19,000,000 was appropriated for the use of the provost marshal general's office. Of this amount $7,000,000 remained untouched, General Crowder said.

AFTER THE SLACKERS.

The provost marshal general informed the committee that his department is about to begin a nation-wide combing through the second, third and fourth draft classes to eliminate slackers from those classes. He asked for a large appropriation for carrying out this work. The cases of Nelson Morris and of Robert Scripps were thoroughly discussed in the committee.

The committee voted to empower Chairman Dent to ask on behalf of the committee that the House recede on its amendment to the quota bill providing that credit be given for volunteers. The conference report will be called up for action in the House in a few days.

WILSON ADMITS ERROR.

A letter from President Wilson to Chairman Dent, acknowledging that he had made a mistake in a former letter in which he said he saw no objection to giving credit for volunteers, was read in the committee today. When he wrote the first letter the President said he had not traced down the "ultimate effect" of granting credit for volunteers. The letter will be used by Chairman Dent in his effort to get the House to recede on its credit amendment.

BRITISH SINKING HUN SHIPS WITH SUBMARINES

More Than Forty Enemy War Vessels Successfully Attacked, Says the Admiralty

By International News Service.

Washington, May 8.—British submarines have successfully attacked no less than forty enemy warships, according to a statement from the British Admiralty received here this afternoon.

The statement fails to make clear during what period these operations occurred. It was pointed out that as the enemy rarely allows his above-water vessels out of the confines of his harbors, very few opportunities are afforded the British submersibles for attack. Accordingly, the record is here considered remarkable.

Night and day the search for enemy warships is conducted, and in spite of the many difficulties, the British submarines manage to drive home their attacks successfully.

While patrolling between the eastern Ems and the Weser River, a submarine sighted destroyer smoke to the south. Two hours were spent in maneuvering for a position to attack. Finally two torpedoes were launched at the destroyer, and the submarine submerged to await results. A moment later a terrific explosion was heard and the submarine came to the surface to see the enemy destroyer going down.

Two more destroyers were attracted to the scene, making a further attack unadvisable.

Today's indictments supersede the blanket indictments returned against the same three men three weeks ago.

TO PROBE MAURICE'S CHARGES

Government Will Stand or Fall on Vote to Be Taken by the Commons

By FLOYD McGRIFF.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, May 8.—A political drive designed to force Premier Lloyd George from office is under full swing today. The opposition is headed by Former Premier Asquith, who has given notice that he will move in Commons for the appointment of a select committee to consider the charges made by General Maurice, former director of military operations at the War Office.

The press association announces that the government will regard the vote upon the motion as one of censure.

The Daily Mail's parliamentary correspondent says:

"The government will treat the motion as a question of confidence and will stand or fall by the decision of the House."

DEBATES TOMORROW.

The government desires the matter to be fully probed by two capable judges, but the opposition declares that a parliamentary act is necessary to empower a judicial committee to act and that delayed action is unwarranted.

Former Premier Asquith's motion will be debated tomorrow.

Meanwhile the question of military discipline raised by the letter which General Maurice sent to the press is being dealt with by the Army Council.

In his letter, he disputes the Prime Minister's implied statement in that Field Marshal Haig's forces were not diminished during 1917. He also takes exception to the Premier's statement that only one white infantry division is in Mesopotamia and that three white divisions are in Egypt and Palestine.

MUST HEAR BOTH SIDES.

The Times takes the view that the point at issue cannot be settled finally.

Huns' Long Range Gun Has No Terrors for Bernhardt

By International News Service

Chicago, May 8.—That long range gun of the Germans which kills women and children has no terrors for Sarah Bernhardt. She said so today when asked if it would keep her from returning to Paris in October as planned.

"I do not fear their long range stupidity," she declared, as she hurled hairpins right and left in her dressing room.

"When I return I shall drive about the streets. I shall not scurry to the cellar at every loud noise. I shall even go to church where they send most of their shells. Prah, the gun, the gun.

"I see General Haig, he gains. Ah mais, c'est une guerre." (Translated, "This is some war.")

"Three years ago they sank the Lusitania," she continued. "That's the kind of beasts they are; wild animals, damned souls, mad dogs, des infames, des sauvages, des betes enragee."

She hurled another handful of hairpins in all directions in her rage.

PLEADS GUILTY OF BIG ARMY CLOTH THEFT

Lowell Man Retracts Not Guilty Plea; Others Held on Charge

Sam Smith, of Lowell, with other defendants charged with the larceny of army cloth worth between $300,000 and $500,000 in shipment between this city and New York, retracted his plea of not guilty, and pleaded guilty before Judge Morton in the United States District Court today. He was bailed in $2500 to appear later for sentence.

Maurice Klain, another defendant, has also pleaded guilty and is out in $2,000 bail. The other defendants are John B. Wall, William Nugent, Henry C. Warren, Louis Fox and Isaac Goldberg, of Worcester; Abraham Smith of Lowell, Max Brooks and Nathan Konlewitz of New York.

It is alleged that they conspired to damage freight cars containing army cloth in shipment, and while the cars were on sidings for repairs, stole the cloth. Of the defendants named all except Nugent, Warren and Fox are charged with receiving the stolen cloth.

GAINS FOR BRITISH AT 3 POINTS

Allied Lines Are Further Extended in Picardy; Australians to the Fore

London, May 8.—The British front has been advanced in three different localities between the Somme and Ancre Rivers, the War Office announced today.

The sector between the Somme and Ancre Rivers lies east by northeast of Amiens on the Picardy battlefield.

Australian troops were the ones who made the gains on the Picardy front, according to unofficial advices this afternoon. They advanced 500 yards at one point, 600 yards at another and extended their lines 300 yards on another front 500 yards wide. The first advance was made north of the Somme River, near Sailly-Sac, and the second west of Morlancourt.

On the Flanders front the German artillery developed intense activity this morning in the sectors of Meteren and Kemmel.

The text of the official report follows:

"As a result of successful minor operations during the night the British line was advanced a short distance between the Somme and Ancre Rivers in three different localities. The British captured a few prisoners.

Cooler Again! Summer's Hot Wave Rolled Back

Cooler!

Credit a thunder shower with an assist.

The advance heat wave sent by Summer was rolled back so that, following the shower with its thunder and lightning trimmings, real seasonable Spring weather resulted.

The official Boston temperature at 12 noon was 74 degrees. This was eleven degrees cooler than at the same hour yesterday.

The local temperature began to drop at early morning. It fell from 72 to 68 degrees between 1 and 5 a. m. Then it climbed back to 72 at 7 o'clock and hung there for more than an hour. At 9 it was back to 68, then it climbed slowly.

At 10 o'clock the thunder storm broke, with frequent flashes of lightning. It was all over in about a half-hour. Some of the suburbs, Winthrop especially, reported that the rain was severe.

HEAVY FIRING HEARD OFF DOVER

London, May 8.—An exceedingly heavy gun duel was heard at sea off Dover today, said a Press Association dispatch from that city. It commenced about 2 o'clock and reached its full height between 6 and 8. It was still in progress when the dispatch was written.

GERMANS DEVELOP TERRIFIC ARTILLERY FIRE IN FLANDERS

"Early this morning the enemy's artillery developed great activity in the sectors of Meteren and Kemmel."

Heavy artillery duels continued throughout the night north and south of the Avre River (on the Picardy battle front southeast of Amiens), the French War Office announced today. The text of the Paris communique follows:

"There was great activity on the part of both artilleries to the north and south of the Avre River.

"The enemy tried several coup de mains west of Montdidier and in the sectors of Thennes, Hangard and Grivesnes, but all were broken up. We made some prisoners.

"There is nothing to report from the rest of the front."

American soldiers are holding part of the battle front in the region of the Avre River.

Ukrainian Premier Wounded in Riot; Anarchy at Kiev

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, May 1.—The Premier of Ukraina (Russia) has been wounded during riots and a state of anarchy is threatened in the country, said a dispatch from Berlin today, giving the socialist newspaper "Vorwaerts as its authority.

Several persons were killed in Kiev (the capital of Ukraina) during the outbreak.

(Admissions by German newspapers show that a grave state of affairs exists in Ukraina. The Germans are dominating the country by force of arms and recently the parliament building at Kiev was invaded by German troops and two members of the government were forcibly arrested. Although there is a faction of the Ukrainians friendly with the Germans, apparently the bulk of the country is hostile to them).

Predicts 3,000,000 U. S. Soldiers in France by End of Year

By International News Service.

New York, May 1.—America will probably have three million men on the battle line before the end of 1918," said Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, speaking at a "Win the war" meeting in Carnegie Hall. "Whatever larger number is necessary will be forthcoming," he added, "that right will make might; that justice, humanity and mercy will triumph over injustice, inhumanity and terrorism."

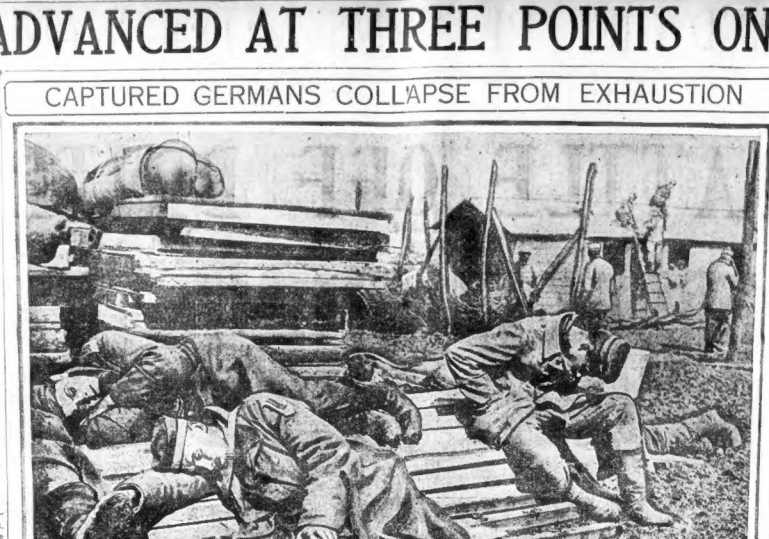
CAPTURED GERMANS COLLAPSE FROM EXHAUSTION



This is photographic verification of cabled reports that German prisoners, exhausted by hours of hard fighting and short rations along the Picardy front, fell to the ground immediately upon their arrival in French internment camps and became lost in deep sleep, the first they had had, many of them said, in days. This French army photograph shows a group of Hun prisoners, newly captured, sleeping soundly, sprawled in the mud of the prison camp.

Germans Try to Keep Allies Guessing as to Next Drive

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

The big guns are still raging along the Picardy and Flanders battle fronts in France, but the expected German blows have not fallen.

There have been successful allied enterprises during the past 36 hours on the Picardy front, before Amiens and the British lines were advanced at three different points between the Somme and Ancre rivers, but there has been no resumption of fighting on a big scale.

The heralded Austro-German drive on the Italian front has not yet developed either, and the only reports that have come from that arena of battle have told of artillery activity.

In Flanders the Germans are switching their artillery attacks from one district to another, with the evident intention of keeping the allies from guessing where the next infantry thrusts will be made. Throughout the night the sectors of Robecq, Locon and St. Julien (all widely separated) were kept under heavy fire, but at dawn the gunfire was suddenly turned to the regions of Meteren and Kemmel hill.

(St. Julien is in Belgium, lying about three and one-half miles northeast of Ypres. Kemmel hill lies just south of Ypres.

Locon is three miles north of the British railhead and base position of Hazlebrouck. Robecq is five miles northeast of Locon, and Meteren, which lies about midway on the Flanders battle line, is eight miles northwest of Armentieres).

Bad weather, with heavy rain storms, has been prevailing over a wide area of the battle zones, but whether this has interfered with the fighting plans is not certain. It is hardly likely, however, for misty weather was in favor of the Germans when they began their attacks forty-nine days ago.

With the armies poised for a renewal of the struggle, another burst of violent infantry assaults might be expected at any time.

Clemenceau Is Taken for Boche; Has to Say "Squirrel"

By International News Service.

Paris, April 19 (By Mail).—On his last visit to the British Premier of France became separated from his party and was held up by a British sentry, who refused to allow him to pass.

"I hope you do not think I am a boche," remarked the Premier, with a smile.

"I don't suppose anything; I don't know," replied the sentinel.

"Have you no means of assuring yourself that I am not?" inquired M. Clemenceau.

The sentinel considered.

"Pronounce the word squirrel," he finally suggested.

"Squirrel," replied the Premier, in perfect English.

The sentry then permitted him to pass.

When M. Clemenceau related the incident to Sir Douglas Haig the latter explained that the word squirrel, being the most difficult word for the German to pronounce, was generally used by the British troops as one of the many spy tests.

HALL, AMERICAN FLIER, LOST IN BATTLE

Iowa Man Missing After a Thrilling Fight in Clouds With German Aviators

By NEWTON C. PARKE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, May 1.—A heavy rainstorm drenched the American front in Lorraine and along the Meuse River yesterday afternoon, interfering with artillery and airplane activity. Earlier in the day enemy snipers had been very active.

Following a series of thrilling air encounters over the American front northwest of Toul Captain James Norman Hall, of Colfax, Iowa, failed to return and is believed to have been shot down or forced to land ten miles inside the German lines.

Hall was formerly flying with the French army, but was afterward transferred to the American forces.

OPENED BATTLE.

Accompanied by two lieutenants Hall left the hangars for patrol duty between St. Mihiel and Pont-a-Mousson. The weather was cloudy. He was attacked by a group of four Germans, now believed to have been attached to the "Flying Circus." The battle opened 6,000 feet up, the American leading the attack against a German whose machine was covered with yellow and white stripes. The German began to circle earthwards when he suddenly lifted his machine gun upwards and let loose.

Captain Hall dived earthward, meantime striving to retain control of his machine trying to make a safe landing over Pagny-Sur-Moselle.

The lieutenants accompanying Hall continued the battle for several minutes, during which two of the German machines suddenly dived downwards. It was not known by the Americans whether the Germans had abandoned the fight or whether they were shot by Hall's machine gun bullets.

AFTER AMERICAN FLIERS.

The American pilots in this encounter drove fast Nieuport machines. Two other American planes, protecting two photographing machines, engaged two Albatross airplanes. One of the Germans dived earthwards, apparently out of control, landing two miles behind the German lines.

Five other German aircraft dropped out of the clouds and attacked one of our planes, which retired safely. There has been much aerial activity along the entire front. It is believed that the Germans upon learning that there were Americans opposing them concentrated some of their crack fliers on this front.

PREFERS LAND FIGHT TO SEA PERILS

Twice Torpedoed and Still Alive, Veteran Sailor Comes to Hub and Enlists

Being shelled by German submarines from a distance of eight miles has rather got upon the nerves of Charles Martin McDonald, a marine fireman of No. 11 Chamber street, so he has enlisted for service in the Inland Waterways and Docks section of the Royal Engineers. He left for Montreal last night, and hopes to be somewhere around the Western front between now and the first of June.

"These new fangled German submarine cruisers have got my goat," said McDonald to Captain ... Breakey of the Royal Engineers, after he had enlisted. "I did not mind the old kind, that you could get a shot at once in a while, but these new fellows lay eight miles off and bang away.

"The last trip that I made through the war zone I left Italy aboard the steamer Pensilvia, bound to Cuba. With us were three other ships and we were convoyed by British cruisers.

"In the Mediterranean one of the new-type submarines showed up and began banging at us. Before the warships got a crack back at her she had sunk three of our ships, and she would have sunk the Pensilvia had not that vessel been so fast that she was able to escape. The moment I could get away from the Pensilvia I jumped aboard the steamer Esparta, came to Boston and got to the British recruiting office as soon as I discovered where it was."

McDonald, who is a native of Charlottetown, P. E. I., has been sailing through the war zone since the outbreak of the war in 1914. Altogether he made fifteen trips between Canada and England. He was twice torpedoed.

16-YEAR-OLD BOY OF ROXBURY MISSING

Albert E. Pace, a Roxbury boy of sixteen, is missing from his home at No. 108 Marcella street. Monday he told his mother, Mrs. Catherine E. Pace he was going to Town Tavern to secure a position as water boy at 34 per day. Inquiries at Ayer show that he did not apply for a position. The mother fears the boy went canoeing and was drowned. He was very fond of this pastime. The boy is of light complexion, about five feet six inches tall, and was dressed in a blue Norfolk coat with blue trousers, such as he wore as messenger for the Western Union Telegraph Company. His shoes were black and cap brown.

MEMORY BANISHED BY WORRY

Miss Cobban Recalls Nothing of Her Wanderings, Had Not Eaten Friday Lunch

Haverhill, May 8.—Miss Margaret M. Cobban, a twenty-four-year-old bookkeeper and Sunday school teacher of this city and Groveland, who has been missing since last Friday, arrived at her Groveland home today exhausted.

She said that she had been wandering in the woods between Groveland and Georgetown for the past five days and nights. She was too weak to tell any more.

Miss Cobban's absence had been a mystery. It was planned to organize systematic searching parties. She is the daughter of one of Groveland's best known families and is engaged to Willis N. Wales, treasurer of the Groveland Board of Trade.

For four years she has been bookkeeper in a factory in the Bradford district of this city. She left the office on Friday at 5:30. At the corner of Main and Kingsbury streets she waved farewell to a girl friend who supposed she was on her way as usual to the transfer station to board a Groveland car.

Miss Cobban then dropped out of sight. She had said nothing to her family or fiance about going away.

Her continued absence had developed statements that she had given indication in the past few months of being worried about something she would not explain.

She had burst out crying before her mother and her fiance several times, but always said she was merely "a little tired."

FOOD FIVE DAYS UNTOUCHED.

Miss Cobban brough back home her lunch box with the food untouched. She told her mother Friday's work was very hard, and that, on her way home, "something snapped in the back of my head."

After that she recalled only being in the woods, dodging behind trees and rocks when she thought someone was coming, and finally finding herself within a mile or two of home today. She made her way "cross-lots" to the kitchen door of the Cobban home.

Her mother was in the kitchen when the girl staggered in without warning. Her approach across the fields from the rear of the house had prevented her being seen from the street.

Miss Cobban was in such a weak and nervous condition that she was immediately put to bed. Dr. Charles A. Holbrook was called. His fiance was notified, but no one except the mother and doctor were permitted to talk with her at first on account of her exhaustion and hysteria.

HOME MILES FROM OFFICE

The Cobban home is about five miles from where the girl works. How many miles of woodland the girl covered in her five nights and four days of wandering no one knows. Her clothing was torn by bushes.

12 BUILDINGS ON CAMBRIDGE COMMON

Wood Gets Orders to Begin Work on Dormitories for Radio Students

The United States Navy has won its first battle on Cambridge Common.

Orders were received today from Washington by Rear Admiral S. S. Wood to begin at once the erection of eleven dormitories and one official building for the Radio School on Cambridge Common.

These will be housed there 1,800 students, and work will begin at once to have these buildings erected for the students.

Admiral Wood, in speaking of the project, said today:

"The Mayor and Common Council of Cambridge have given their consent and the majority of Cambridge people have expressed themselves as willing to endorse the taking of the historic common for this purpose.

"We intend to make more history for it by establishing this school here. At least 1800 young men will be in the different dormitories.

"Only five trees may be disturbed. After the war we shall return the Common in the best of shape. The buildings will be constructed of wood and will be made for temporary use.

"This is an undertaking which will show to much advantage what this radio school means and what this particular type of war service sets forth."

SPECIAL NOTICE

SEARS OBJECTED TO DOG IN BED, SAYS BROTHER

Declared He Was Forced to Leave Home, Testifies Defendant in $15,000 Suit

Russell F. Sears of Norwood, defendant in the $15,000 alienation suit brought by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Myrtle M. Sears, testified today in the Superior Court at Dedham that his brother left home because Mrs. Sears' dog slept in the bed with them.

The witness said his brother, Oscar A. Sears, declared that for this reason he was forced to leave the house. Mrs. Sears also threatened to cut her husband's throat, he stated.

Russell said that Mr. and Mrs. Sears quarrelled before and after marriage, and that when they lived in his house they refused to get his meals. On one occasion he said he came home and found the house locked up. He placed a ladder under the window of Mrs. Sears' room, and looking in discovered her in bed. She got up and let him in the front door, he testified.

Testifying as to quarrels, Russell said that on the Christmas before his brother's marriage, his fiancee sulked for two hours because Oscar talked with the Sears housekeeper. On another occasion he said that Mrs. Sears slapped her husband's face because he brought home the picture of another woman. He testified that when Oscar and his wife visited an aunt of the Sears brothers in Pittsfield, Mrs. Sears became angry because her husband was given the only dish of blackberries left.

Mrs. Annie White, sister of the plaintiff, and the last witness for her, previously testified that while on a visit to the Sears home she noticed that Russell appeared to be restless. He knocked over furniture, slammed doors and broke dishes, she said.

PLANTING DAY IN BOSTON MAY 18

Mayor Peters today officially designated Saturday, May 18, as "Planting Day."

Early that day the Mayor will plant the first seed of the city's "war garden" at Franklin Park. The ceremonies will take place at 9 o'clock on a section of the golf links near Circuit drive.

Accompanying the Mayor will be Mrs. Peters, Chairman Victor A. Heath of the executive committee and George B. Johnson, chairman of the food production committee, with other members of that committee.

At todays meeting a contract form was approved by the members and it was voted to send it to the plotholders. The contract states plainly four what purpose the plot is to be, holder, states just what the city will do for each individual and explains in detail the entire project.

The "citizen farmer is to pay $10 for his eighth acre. A payment of $5 is to be made when the plot is assigned, the second payment of $5 to be made August 1.

Already several applicants have paid their money to the committee, so eager are they to be "in."

"Liberty Queen," the auto-tractor, is working late nights to get the land into condition. At present Superintendent Yoingman is harrowing with the machine, completing about twenty acres each day.

Assignments of plots will be made within a few days. The city engineers are today staking the eight acre plots.

Mayor Peters, Heath and Johnson expressed much satisfaction in connection with the progress of the work.

LIMITED BILL FOR ABSENTEE VOTING

Measure Reported Applies to Soldiers and Sailors Only

An absentee voting bill was reported by the legislative committee on Election Laws today.

It allows soldiers and sailors to vote for Presidential electors, United States Senators, Congressmen, Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and the four State officers.

It withholds from them the right to vote for or against the members of the Legislature and county, district and town officers and referenda. They would not be allowed to vote for articles in amendment of the constitution under which they must live.

Bush voting as is allowed would be by mail.

Railroad trainmen, commercial travelers and others who by force of circumstances may be absent from the State on Election Day are excluded from enjoying the privilege of the bill.

The absentee-voting amendment was adopted by the Constitutional Convention and was ratified by the people by an overwhelming majority. It contained no restrictions against soldiers, sailors, railroad trainmen, commercial travelers or others. In fact it was passed in the form drawn by Walter McMennimen, the legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

COFFEE FOR TWO YEARS PAID FOR BY SHAW

A report submitted to Mayor Peters by the Boston Finance Commission, relating to certain coffee contracts made by former Penal Institutions Commissioner David S. Shaw, states that 30,000 pounds of coffee were bought from John J. Arroll & Company from March 11, 1916, to November, 21, 1917. The payments made totalled $5,242.

Of the amount of coffee purchased there was delivered during that time 16,000 pounds. Touching on this matter report reads:

"The Finance Commission finds that the City of Boston has made payments to John J. Arroll & Company for all of these contracts, but there is at present undelivered the amount of 14,000 pounds of coffee. This amount represents approximately a two-years' supply for the Deer Island institution on the basis of the present population.

"The celerity with which the Penal Commissioner purchased this large amount of coffee is shown by the fact that before delivery was completed on the first contract for 6,000 pounds having been delivered) a new contract was made for an additional 5,000 pounds, and when only 2,000 pounds had been delivered on the second contract, a new contract was made for another 5,0000 pounds. Before deliveries on the second contract had been completed, a fourth contract for 5,000 pounds was made and before a single pound was delivered on the fourth contract a new contract was made, and still later another contract for 5,000 pounds was made.

Responding to the Mayor's request, Shaw admitted purchasing the coffee, but did so, he said, in anticipation of rising prices because of the war, or other reasons.

Reuben Levine, Eddie Kandler and Karl Popits were said to have been the men hired to do the work. Popitz and Levine are now serving terms in prison for conspiracy in other cases. Kandler is the man who gave a demonstration in court of the method used by firebugs in destroying buildings for hire.

MOTHER WITH FAMILY OF SEVEN KEEPS HAPPY WHILE HUSBAND IS FIGHTING

Margaret Sullivan, the "Little Mother," and Baby Frances, whose smiles are all for "Daddy" when he comes back from war.

By MARIE DUNBAR.

It's the same kind of stoicism that the women of the Allied armies across the seas are showing; it's the same spirit that made our pioneers bear up under the monotonous and wearisome journey to the West; and it's the heart of a real mother and patriot that brings a smile to the face of Mrs. Michael Sullivan of No. 98 Eustis street, Roxbury.

"She is mother's comfort, the sweetest and best child that ever lived," remarked Mrs. Sullivan, as she patted the fat little hands of her young child Frances, aged eight months. "And I wouldn't part with her for all the millions anyone could show me."

Mrs. Sullivan, to those of worldly minds, may seem to be carrying a cross whose burden is prohibitive. But the slaving to keep the children clean, to keep them in school, to write only cheerful letters to the father abroad—they all fade away and the cross is illuminated when the mother fondles her small baby as she talks of the father who has just been wounded abroad.

The husband first enlisted in the service at the time of the Spanish-American war," she said. "Then when the Mexican trouble came up he enlisted with the old 9th. Eight months and more ago he left for France. It's been hard.

"The $30 a month I receive from the government just pays the rent. My three oldest children help. I can sew, so by figuring I have been able to keep the children in school. I don't want them to miss that.

"And I never tell them any of the troubles. He does not know. He is having a hard enough time. The baby was only two weeks old when he left."

Mr. Sullivan was a paper hanger. He is a crack shot and an athlete. His seven children are all the picture of health and they are happy. That is their mother.

And the sweet "Little Mother" is Margaret, age eleven. She is the one to whom cooing little Frances makes a drive for as soon as the mother is out of sight, and she is the little lady who helps to lighten her mother's burdens at home.

New England's Liberty Loan total was raised to $333,525,000 by the subscriptions turned in on the second day after the close of the campaign, which amounted to $11,049,000, a total that exceeded those of many days during the height of the drive. Of the day's total Boston contributed $7,187,000, and the gross subscriptions in this city were swelled to $112,953,000. A number of banks which have not reported are believed to have substantial sums to credit to the loan.

Total subscriptions to this loan now exceed those of the first, which were $332,000,000.

Maine's gain for the day, $195,000, brought its total to $18,275,550, or 143 per cent. of its allotment; New Hampshire's gain, $162,000, brought the total to $14,832,650, or 154 per cent.; Rhode Island's, $462,000, to $28,799,550, or 133 per cent; Connecticut's, $575,000, to $54,671,050, or 165 per cent.; and the Bay State's, $9,339,000, to $206,263,050, or 127 per cent. Russian Warships Bombard Germans in Mariupol Harbor

By International News Service.

Berlin, via London, May 8.—Russian warships have bombarded German forces in the harbor of Mariupol, the War Office announces. The statement follows:

"In the harbor establishments of Mariupol, we were bombarded by Russian ships."

Mariupol is a Russian seaport on the north shore of the Sea of Azov, 140 miles southeast of Yekaterinoslav. The Berlin statement indicates that one of the Russian Black Sea fleet is still at large and actively opposing the German invasion along the littoral in the direction of the Caucasus. The fact that the Berlin War Office takes occasion to make a special announcement of the attack by Russian warships would indicate that the Germans thus wish to justify further aggressive measures in Russia.

One of Germany's holdfast aims in connection with the conquest of Russia is to join the Austrian Black Sea fleet with the Turkish naval forces and attack the allied bases in the Mediterranean.

KAISER'S SECRET CODE SOLVED BY U. S. AGENTS

Office to South American countries to decrease diplomatic expenses.

1823D BY PAYMASTER.

The deciphered code is the one used by Hugo Schmidt, who was paymaster in this country. He attempted to destroy it by burning the original copy in the Deutsche Verein (German Club) in New York city when he became entangled in the Bernstorff-General in the Invesc gation of Bolo Pasha's activities.

When his name was linked with that of the man recently executed by the French government, Schmidt went to the German Club. There, in the presence of an assistant, Charles Nichols, he burned the copy of the code into a furnace. Fragmentary evidence of the code, however, was discovered in Schmidt's office. This enabled Deputy Attorney-General Becker to reconstruct it.

THEIR CODE NAMES.

Schmidt's name in code was "Sidney Pickford." Bolo Pasha was "St. Regis." Captain Boy-ed was "Richard Houston." Von Papen was "Thomas Ferguson."

The War Office was coded as "William Foxley," while the words "A boy born yesterday, both well," meant "The remittance of German war loan bonds mentioned in your wireless message arrived safely."

Orders for copper and wool large supplies of which were obtained here for shipment through neutral countries, were also coded.

William J. Cheney, member of the Board of Assessors a number of years, the last four of which he was raised to principal assessor at a salary of $1,000, today tendered his resignation to Mayor Peters. He was appointed principal assessor by Curley four years ago.

Bolsheviki Agree to Financial Parleys With Austrian Government

London, May 8.—The Russian peoples' commissary has sent a wireless statement to the Austrian foreign office stating its consent to the formation of a joint commission to go to Russia for the purpose of examining questions of Russian interest and state obligations.

The above dispatch indicates that the Bolshevik government proposes to rescind, as far as Austria is concerned, at least, its previous action in declaring all of Russia's financial obligations null and void.

F. E. RICHARDS, BANKER, DEAD AT PORTLAND

Portland, Me., May 8.—Fred E. Richards, one of Maine's most prominent bankers and financiers until he retired through ill health three years ago, is dead at his home here. He would have been seventy-seven next August. For many years he was president of the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company. He was on the councils of both Governors Dingley and Connor, and served two terms as State bank examiner.

COLEMAN BACK, LAUDS MORALE OF U.S. ARMY

Physically Strong and Clean Morally, Says Boston Man Who Visited Front

An Atlantic Port, May 8.—George W. Coleman, of Boston, back from France after a thorough investigation of affairs on and near the battle line in behalf of the National Baptist Society, looks for a war of three to five years more.

America's army, he declares, is absolutely clean. He visited the camps of the New England troops, saw many Boston men of his acquaintance, and brings messages from some of them to the folks at home. But he saw no signs of immorality anywhere among the members of the American Expeditionary Forces.

"The Boston boys looked splendid," he said. "They are in good health. Men who broke down in college are strong and healthy in France.

"There is no drinking. Officers told me that ill-health due to immorality is much less than in civilian communities.

Mr. Coleman met in France a number of Bostonians, including "Ted" McCormack, the swimmer; Robert Witherell, Robert N. Biddle, R. I. Lincoln, Arthur F. Newell. He saw the sons of Dr. George L. Perin of the Franklin Square House and of Henry Lefavour Pelham, and a brother of John Connolly, former president of the Press Club.

With the 101st Engineers he found Carroll J. Swan who, like Coleman, was a prominent member of the Pilgrim Publicity Association. In Paris he met Irvin Cobb.

VICTIM OF HUN BRAND IS PERMITTED TO LAND

John J. Mitchell, a Zulu sailor who was branded with a German iron cross on the East Coast of Africa, and who has been detained at the Immigration Station, Long Wharf, pending an investigation of his story, was today officially "landed" upon payment of the required head tax of $4. Following his admission into the United States, Mitchell was furnished employment as a freight handler on Central Wharf.

ASQUITH LEADS FIGHT TO OUST LLOYD GEORGE

ment, however convincing, from the Premier himself," added the paper.

The Daily Mirror declared that Mr. Lloyd George will give the whole facts and figures in an open session of the House of Commons and will invite the members to give judgment.

The Daily Graphic, in its editorial upon General Maurice's letter, said:

"It does not derive its importance wholly from the fact that it is not a large extent because it falls on fertile soil. It may have momentous consequences in other ways. The good old English fashion both sides must be heard before judgment can be pronounced."

It is understood the Premier objects to the figures in the statement to Parliament regarding the overseas army strength from the War Office.

PREMIER AT CONFERENCE.

"Sir Aspinh's manoeuvres suggest that the old gang believe they have found a weapon that will destroy the government," said the Daily Mail. "They imagine that the country is ready for an overthrow of the Lloyd George government and a return to power of Asquith-Lansdowne-Grey-McKenna."

The Premier attended a conference today where the matter was discussed.

The Press Association understands that the Premier will be supported, consistent to both sides."

"Either these over occurring assaults must be stopped, or the government must go to lengths that are desperately serious," the Express says.

WIDOW OF IRISH MARTYR BARRED IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., May 3.—Mrs. Hannah Sheehy Skeffington, widow of Sheehy Skeffington, who was shot in the first Dublin riots of a year ago, was refused permission to speak at the farewell reception that had been planned for her by the United Irish Societies of this city.

The police commissioners called the committee in charge of the affair together and told them that Mrs. Skeffington could not speak at the meeting and they would not allow Elks Hall opened if they persisted. Further, the commissioners told the committee that she could not sit upon the stage, but might sit with the audience.

The committee agreed to this proposition and just before the meeting was called Thomas J. Mathews, chairman of the committee, and Miss Elizabeth Doyle, a school teacher and prominent club worker, called upon Mrs. Skeffington at her hotel and advised her not to attempt to go to the meeting.

This she readily assented to and she left for New York while a great crowd was filling the hall.

Before leaving the city Mrs. Skeffington said:

"It is against the Constitution of your country to muzzle a person before they know what the person is going to do or say. Ireland, however, will live through it, and so will I. As they say in your country, 'I

Huns Now 'Bushers' in Parlance of U. S. Marines

By International News Service.

New York, May 3.—A new name has been found by American fighting men in France for the Hun, according to a letter received from a United States Marine. Not understanding just how the word "boche" should be pronounced, the Americans hit upon calling all Huns "bushers," a term understood by all as carrying the full amount of contempt they feel for the enemy.

WILSON ISSUES APPEAL FOR RED CROSS

By International News Service

Washington, May 3.—President Wilson, in a proclamation, appealed to the American people to help the Red Cross in its second campaign to raise $100,000,000. The war fund drive begins May 20 and continues through that week which the President has designated "Red Cross Week." His proclamation follows:

"Inasmuch as the war fund of 1917 so generously contributed by the American people to the American Red Cross for the administration of relief at home and abroad, has been practically exhausted by appropriations for the welfare of the men in our military and naval forces, and for those dependent upon them and for the yet more urgent necessities of our Allies, military and civilian, who have long borne the brunt of war;

"And, inasmuch as the year of our own participation in the war has brought unprecedented demands upon the patriotism and liberality of our people, and made evident the necessity of concentrating the work of relief in one main organization which can respond effectively and universally to the needs of humanity under the stress of war;

"And, inasmuch as the duration of the war and the closer and closer cooperation of the American Red Cross with our own army and navy, with the governments of our Allies, and with foreign relief organizations, have resulted in the discovery of new opportunities of helpfulness under conditions which translate opportunity into duty;

"And, inasmuch as the American Red Cross Council and its commissioners in Europe have faithfully and economically administered the peoples' trust;

"Now, therefore, by virtue of my authority as president of the United States and president of the American Red Cross, I, Woodrow Wilson, do hereby proclaim the week beginning May 20, 1918, as 'Red Cross Week,' during which the people of the United States will be called upon again to give generously to the continuation of the important work of relieving distress, restoring the waste of war and assisting in maintaining the morale of our own troops and peoples of our allies by this manifestation of effort and sacrifice on the part of those, who, though not privileged to bear arms, are of one spirit, purpose and determination with our warriors.

"In witness, whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done in the district of Columbia, this seventh day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and forty-second.

(Signed) "WOODROW WILSON."

IN COURT ACCUSED OF $8,000 CLOTH THEFT

Samuel Noos, twenty-three, of Waltham street, Boston, appeared in the Cambridge court today on a charge of the larceny of $8000 worth of cloth from the tailor shop of John J. Brennan, No. 66 Boylston street, Cambridge on the night of April 11.

The case was continued until May 14, and Noos was held in $5000. The man was arrested in Boston by Lieutenant Irwin and Patrolman Crowley. The police believe Noos is one of a gang of organized thieves who have been robbing tailor shops and dry goods houses for some months past.

COAT OF YELLOW PAINT FOR STATUE OF GOETHE

Chicago, May 3.—Spread with yellow paint from its knees down, the statue of Johann Wolfgang Von Goethe stands today in Lincoln Park. "Two Americans" last night painted the statue of the German poet a deep yellow and left a card at the base bearing these words: "An emphatic protest from a free people against the retention of what always has been an offense against art, and now is a challenge to loyalty. Shall this park, named for the illustrious Lincoln, continue to harbor such an enormity or will the people of Chicago insist on its immediate removal?"

WELCOME FIRST NEW NEUTRAL STEAMSHIP

An Atlantic Port, May 3.—With the distinction of being the first new neutral steamship to reach this port since the war started, the Norwegian-American liner Stavangerfjord docked here today on her maiden voyage. She carried no passengers, but passengers will be booked for her return voyage next week.

The Stavangerfjord is a twin screw vessel, is of 12,000 tons displacement, and cost $4,250,000.

TO TRAIN AVIATORS AT CAMP BARTLETT

Westfield, May 3.—Camp Bartlett, used as a training camp for a part of the 26th Division of National Guardsmen, will become an aviation training ground within a short time, it was stated today.

The War Department is now considering the matter, and a favorable decision is expected within a few days. Officers of the equipment division of the Signal Corps inspected the camp, and reported that it could be used continually except for a few months during the Winter.

Dog Bill Is Voted Down by House Committee

Much to the delight of dog lovers, the House ways and means committee of the Legislature has voted to report against the bill "for further restriction and regulation of dogs."

The original dog bill had forty-one sections. It has one left.

The one section provides that dogs may be deemed to be personal property for the purpose of taxation.

It will be the first time that dogs will be taxed. The license fee will also continue in force.

But the forty sections which sought further to "restrict and regulate" the well-known dog have passed into obscurity.

That is, unless the House should overturn the committee.

And the dog lovers, drawing a long breath for the first time in weeks, say that is quite impossible.

FALLING BRANCH CAUSES DEATH OF ARMY OFFICER

Northampton, May 3.—Lieutenant Earl T. Williams, twenty-nine, who expected to leave camp Devens for the front shortly, died in the Dickinson Hospital from injuries sustained when the limb of a tree fell on him. Williams, whose home is in Brooklyn, N. Y., and a Lieutenant Smith came here from Camp Devens. While visiting at the home of Harry T. Curtis on South street the two officers went out to run their automobile into a garage during a heavy thunder storm. They were returning to the house from the garage when the wind blew a heavy branch from a tree. It struck Williams, rendering him unconscious. He was taken to the hospital, where he died.

SAW AMERICANS IN BATTLE OF APREMONT

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, May 3.—A palatial French liner, which has not visited American shores in more than a year, arrived at an American port yesterday. A number of French and Canadian soldiers were on board, some on furlough and many incapacitated and on their way home to Canada.

Dr. William T. Ellis, a writer, was a passenger. He is the first American to arrive in this country who witnessed the American soldiers in action at Apremont. He said:

"It was three weeks ago. Our boys fought like heroes, although outnumbered four to one. I saw one soldier, who is a Greek by birth and who joined the American army in New York, have his gun shot out of his hand. He thrust his hand into his pocket, pulled out a knife, leaped forward and killed a German lieutenant."

Another incident which Dr. Ellis described was that of an American captain who ripped the silver bars from his coat and throwing them on the ground, yelled, "come on, we will all go over the top."

Continuing, he said:

"No brighter page in American history has been written than that covering the deeds of those American soldiers fighting the Prussians independently when outnumbered four to one. They never gave way an inch, always drove them back. They never lost a prisoner but captured three truck loads of prisoners."

Several United States naval officers, passengers on the ship, paid a high tribute to the American aviators for their valor in the attack of Zeebrugge, where British aeroplanes were used by the Americans.

AMERICAN REPORTERS TO BE TRIED IN MEXICO

The men are Robert Murray of the New York World, Smith of the New York Herald and Schofield of the Associated Press. Murray is also the Mexican representative of the Committee on Public Information.

"I never realized what a soap could do for the skin until my mate at camp gave me a cake of Lifebuoy."

Camp life is the real test of soap

A soldier must keep healthy—his skin must always be in good condition

After a day's training, the soldier comes in chafed, sore—covered with perspiration. This perspiration often irritates the skin where it is chafed, because perspiration contains acids and waste matter from the system. In fact, the acids in perspiration are so strong that they turn green cloth yellow and blue cloth red. Because of its moisture, moreover, perspiration easily collects dust and dirt.

When the soldier washes with Lifebuoy, its rich, creamy lather not only cleanses his skin thoroughly—but it carries into the pores a most healthful antiseptic. This soothes the sore skin—counteracts perspiration acids and impurities—prevents irritations—keeps the skin clear—smooth—radiant with health.

Because Lifebuoy keeps the skin in such fine condition, it is one of the most popular soaps in United States training camps.

Your skin needs this protection every day

Every day, in ordinary life, your skin throws off about a quart of perspiration. Every day, your skin picks up dust and dirt.

Protect your skin from these acids and impurities—keep it healthy. Nowadays the greatest health authorities are teaching the value of prevention.

By giving your skin the proper daily care, you can prevent irritations—you can keep your skin in fine condition.

Begin using Lifebuoy today. See how its creamy, antiseptic lather refreshes—cleanses—protects. See how it keeps your skin clear—smooth—glowing with health!

The odor tells you why

The "health" odor in Lifebuoy is found in no other soap. It is not a perfume—not the odor of a medicine—but a pure, hygienic odor that tells you instantly why the soap benefits your skin. One whiff of Lifebuoy and you realize why it cleanses so thoroughly—why it purifies and protects—why it improves your skin.

Try a cake of Lifebuoy. Use it for the face, hands, bath—and watch your skin improve.

HINSDALE WINS HONORS IN WAR CONTRIBUTIONS

The little town of Hinsdale, N. H., is coming in for its share of honors as one of the "biggest small towns in New England" as far as war funds go. With a population of 1,400 Hinsdale was right up in front in both the first and second Liberty Loan drives, and ranked among the first in the raising of funds for the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. In the third Liberty Loan the town's quota was $84,500, and $62,500 was subscribed, representing 365 individuals. The hat was passed last week along the line of parade when the young sons of Hinsdale went off to camp, and each lad was presented $31.

WOMEN TAKE PART IN TAMMANY CONCLAVE

New York, May 8.—Women took their seats in political conclave at Tammany Hall for the first time when newly chosen feminine members of the executive committee sat down with veteran male leaders at the Fourteenth street headquarters. Every effort was exerted to make the women feel at home at their initial conference. Leader Charles F. Murphy and other Tammany dignitaries gave the thirty or more new members a cordial welcome.

Mr. Murphy's face was wreathed in smiles as he greeted one after another of the women, many of whom he had never before met.

CHARGE MACHINISTS' BILL AGAINST U. S. IS FALSE

Martin T. Peterson of Larch street, Cambridge, who is head of the Mohawk Tool Company, located on Atlantic avenue, was held in $1,000 by Commissioner Hayes on the charge of attempting to defraud the Government. He pleaded not guilty, and his case was continued to May 14.

Peterson, it is alleged, presented a claim to the commanding officer of the Watertown Arsenal against the United States for the payment of labor amounting to 1044½ hours of time performed on a recoil roller gauge, the amount of money involved being $108.84. It is alleged that the claim is false.

ONLY A NICKEL, BUT BOY HELPS DEVENS SOLDIERS

"The Spirit of 1918." Pauline and Frances Mason posing in tableau in which they will appear at the big carnival Saturday night in aid of the Boston AMERICAN Camp Devens Baseball Fund.

He was a little boy of barely ten years and when he walked into the business office of the AMERICAN and stepped up to the subscription window his eyes were just on a level with the shelf.

He laid down a battered nickel before the astonished eyes of a clerk.

"Got that in yer fun?" he said.

"Fun? What fun? How do you mean, fun?"

"Aw the Baseball Fun." Whaddye suppose, fun? This is the place, ain't it? Well put that nickel in it, will yer? It ain't a lot, but it's a nickel. Put it in the fun' and shove her over the top."

When it came to the clerk what it was all about he tried to get more information, but without success.

"Whaddye yer want me name for? You got the nickel ain't you? Well, forget it. I don't want me name in the paper, I only want to help out the boys." And he departed and so must forever remain in the published list as "Unknown Boy $0.05."

ONLY FOUR MORE DAYS.

Four days more only remain in the campaign to put the Boston AMERICAN'S Camp Devens Baseball Fund "Over the Top."

This fund, which was started at the instigation of Major-General Hodges, to build a grandstand and athletic field at Camp Devens, has received the generous support of Boston and New England people at a time when many other urgent calls were being made upon them for what appeared more important objects.

Boston has never been behind in movements of this nature and the figures in today's total, nearly $4,000, show how New Englanders stand when it comes to doing their bit for the men in the service.

The final windup of the campaign, the big benefit to be held on Saturday night, will undoubtedly result in an oversubscription of the maximum of money first asked for, but the more money collected the more it means in hours of play and sunshine for those boys in khaki who are going across the seas to keep Boston from being a colonial seaport of the Kaiser.

BIG PAGEANT AT ARENA.

The final windup of the drive, to be literally with a flourish of trumpets, comes off Saturday night at the Boston Arena with the big pageant and carnival in which 1200 children, who have been trained by Lilla Viles Wyman will appear in fantastic dances and other features of a monster program.

Included in this entertainment will be the entire program of Mrs. W. S. Butler's May Festival, together with a big feature in which 400 Boy Scouts of America and 250 Girl Scouts will take part. Those who are familiar with the work of Lilla Viles Wyman in training children in dances will realize the excellence of the bill.

One number will consist of the singing by Mme. Wilhelmina Wright Calvert of the "Star Spangled Banner," during which fires will be unfurled by 1,200 children who will join in the chorus.

Another number will be the singing in chorus for the first time of the new song written by John Morgan, formerly of the Boston Opera Company, and dedicated to the Boy Scouts of America, entitled "The Boy Scouts of the U. S. A."

Tickets for this pageant are now on sale at the following places and will tomorrow be placed in other convenient stands: Adams House, Horricks Wright & Ditson's and the Boston AMERICAN.

CAN SEND MONEY AND CHECKS.

For those who care to contribute to the fund direct it is still possible to send money and checks made payable to Lieutenant Robert C. Deming at Camp Devens. Lieutenant Deming was appointed by General Hodges as custodian of this fund and the AMERICAN is acting merely as a transfer agent.

DISLOYALTY BY SPAULDING DENIED

Counsel Calls for Acquittal of Former Worcester Professor on Trial at Ayer

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 8.—The court-martial of Private John Austin Spaulding, former professor of German at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, accused of unpatriotic utterances, closed today. The case was taken under consideration by the court and the verdict will not be announced until it has been reviewed by Major-General Harry P. Hodges, probably in about two weeks.

Attorney E. A. Whitman asked for the acquittal of the defendant. He declared the government had failed to prove any intent upon the part of Spaulding to be disloyal or that any word or act of disloyalty had ever been charged in the specification. He said in part:

"This is no time to trifle with loyalty. The accused has been a good soldier and has always had the confidence of his superior officers. I submit that the verdict of the court should be one of not guilty. The government has failed to prove any intent of disloyalty on the part of the prisoner and the remarks attributed to him were purely academic discussions among a group of college men who invited them and all of whom admitted they were harmless.

GOT NEW VIEWS ABROAD.

"I am surprised at the attitude of the prosecution in regard to isolated statements in private conversations as breaches of military discipline. There have been cases where it has been a custom for a man to have a too anxious and devoted mother. Spaulding's nose was in his books nearly all of the time and witnesses have stated he came in contact with the other fellows in college but very little. When he went to Germany he was away from his home ties and the old spell fell away from him. He rubbed shoulders with the German people. They were kind to him. He obtained a new viewpoint and it is no wonder that he came back with a rosy view of the German people. The curious part of this case is that the prosecution should think the statements disloyal.

"Spaulding never should have been brought to trial. He should have been summoned before his superior officers and the matter of his military slipper applied. That would have been sufficient. A public trial would have been avoided, the time of this court would not have been taken up and the result would have been the same.

"It is too bad that any action of this courtshould spoil a good soldier in the making and I love you gentlemen, to return a verdict of not guilty."

HARMFUL TO MORALE.

Lieutenant John R. Cummings, Judge advocate of the court martial, summed up the government's case against Spaulding in a few brief sentences. He told the court that the government considered the statements made by Spaulding unpatriotic and pro-German, that they had a tendency to demoralize and undermine the morale of the soldiers and that the accused was properly charged under the 96th Article of War.

The court was closed. It was reopened a few minutes later and Colonel Charles C. Smith, president of the court, asked Judge Advocate Cummings if he had a record of any previous convictions. The judge advocate replied that he had none, after which the case was officially closed and the court took the evidence under consideration.

Physician Says Nuxated Iron Quickly Puts Astonishing Strength and Energy into the Blood of Men and Women—Thousands of Nervous, Run-Down Women.

Ask the first hundred strong, healthy people you meet to what they owe good health and vim, and ninety-nine reply "Nuxated Iron." Dr. James Francis Dwyer, the well-known physician of the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency and do not realize it. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron is quickly exerts its influence in terms of strength, healthy women, and strong, vigorous men. To make absolutely sure that my patients get real organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety, I always prescribe Nuxated Iron. In his original packages. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous run-down folks in two weeks time, in many instances."

If you are not entirely satisfied after using a package of Nuxated Iron return the empty package to the manufacturers, The Nuxated Iron Co., 52 Duane St., New York, and they will refund your money promptly.

ARMY AND NAVY AMERICAN

DEMOCRACY — BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MAY 8, 1918. — LIBERTY

BIG LEAGUES TO DIRECT SHIP ATHLETICS

On Board the Receiving Ship, Boston, May 8.—Simeon A. Murch, the veteran big league ball player, has been engaged by the Y. M. C. A. for director of athletics and recreation for the jackies on the good ship Concrete.

Director Murch begins his duties today, but will spend a few days in having a "look-see" before he starts anything.

"I hope to have a first-rate ball team," said Murch. "Nothing like the all-professional teams now wearing army and navy colors, but a good, fast amateur team, with perhaps, several second string teams nearly as good."

Director Murch in his professional days played baseball with Haverhill and Lawrence in the New England League and with St. Louis and Brooklyn in the National League. Latterly he has been athletic director at the Middlebury (Vt.) College.

Frederic Schenck will speak in the Y. M. C. A. Theatre on the U. S. S. Concrete tonight and his subject will be "Germany." This is distinctly worth looking into.

Also Charles Baron Pelles will dance. Mr. Pelles is an exponent of the Ballet Russe and with marvelous adaptability and a limitless wardrobe he bewilders his audience with an extraordinary number of roles, both male and female, in swift succession. Ask his press agent.

DORCHESTER K. OF C. TO BUY BOYS MORE KITS

Dorchester Council K. of C. meets tonight at the Columbus Club, Pearl and Pleasant streets, to make arrangements for many social affairs to increase the fund to purchase "comfort kits" for the members in the service. Thomas McElaney, now in the navy, will preside.

EDITORIAL

Probably no better argument for the need of swimming instruction for soldiers could be advanced than the two recent deaths from drowning of enlisted men at Camp Devens. Neither of the victims could swim and if they had been taught even the first rudiment of keeping afloat both would probably have been saved.

With the approach of warm weather the lives of more soldiers are bound to be placed in jeopardy in ponds and rivers in and about the cantonment at Ayer, and steps should be taken by the military authorities to prevent further tragedies.

Swimming is an enjoyable exercise that will also aid in keeping the men in good physical condition.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF DEVENS HOSPITAL COOK

The funeral of William S. Best, cook at the Base Hospital at Camp Devens who was drowned in the lake between Shirley and Camp Devens when the boat in which he was a passenger with four other soldiers from Camp Devens filled with water and sank was held at his home, No. 161 Bloomingdale street, Chelsea.

Private Best was well known in Chelsea and was drafted about three months ago. He was assigned to Company C of the 301st and a short time ago was sent to the Base Hospital as cook. Besides his widow he leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Best of No. 116 Franklin avenue, Chelsea, and his brother George Best, a member of the Chelsea police department. A large detail from Camp Devens escorted the body to its final resting place.

ROLL CALL FOR NAME OF REGIMENT'S FIRST BABY

Camp Devens, May 8.—First Lieutenant William H. Young of Medford, first lieutenant of Supply Company, 304th Infantry, is the father of the first boy born in the regiment. As an honor, the officers have decided to present the son a cup and to name it, taking the last name of each.

His name will be Anson McCook Gabriel Donovan Dennis Young, they say. Mrs. Young may be interested in the matter.

BOSTON BOYS IN U. S. ARMY WIN PROMOTION

From training camps in the South comes the report of successes of three of Boston's patriotic sons who have been awarded promotions. They are Nathan W. Gillette, who has been made a provisional second lieutenant; Sergeant Harold J. Smith, who has just graduated from the training school at Camp Joseph Johnstone, Florida, and Sergeant John M. Curley.

Lieutenant Gillette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gillette of Revere, was born in Revere and is a graduate of the Revere grammar and high schools and at the time of his enlistment was attending the Massachusetts Agricultural College. He is twenty-one years old. Lieutenant Gillette is attached to Battery B, Sixteenth Field Artillery, stationed at Camp Greene, North Carolina.

Sergeant Smith enlisted last September and was immediately sent to Camp Johnstone. He is the son of James Smith of No. 197 Blue Hill avenue, Milton. At the time of his enlistment he was an instructor at the Roxbury High School in the commercial department.

Smith is a graduate of the Christopher Gibson school of Dorchester and the High School of Commerce. While a student at the latter school he was one of the star football players.

Sergeant Curley, who is in line for a commission, is one of four brothers in the service. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Curley of 1284 Blue Hill avenue, Mattapan. Peter M. Jr., is in the reserves, Walter is a second class gunner's mate, stationed at Annapolis, and George T. is bugler at the Naval Radio School, Cambridge.

Sergeant Curley has been at Camp Johnstone, Jacksonville, Fla., since January. He is a graduate of the Roger Wolcott grammar and Dorchester high schools. He was one of the star athletes at both schools. For the last seven years he has been a traveling salesman for a large steel house.

POSTAL DEFIES LEGISLATURE IN FISH CASE

Telegrams Asked as Evidence Refused; Jurisdiction Is Disputed

Challenging the power of the Legislature, the Postal Company today refused to produce the telegrams sent by the Bay State Fish Company to its customers during the first fifteen days of November.

The telegrams were asked by the committee appointed to investigate the high prices of fish.

Allegations that the Bay State has ample power, through control of the Boston market, to fix prices have been made frequently.

"We wanted to find whether the company had ever sent any orders to its customers regarding the price for which the fish must be sold," said Assistant Attorney-General Charles W. Mujcahy, legal adviser to the committee.

George Downey, Fish Pier agent of the postal, appeared before the committee yesterday with the telegrams. The Western Union Telegraph Company also produced the telegrams sent by that company for the Bay State. The agents of both companies said that because of an interstate Commerce Commission ruling they hesitated about submitting the original telegrams. They were excused until today, when they agreed to produce copies of the telegrams.

"HERE'S THE TELEGRAM."

The Western Union agents today delivered copies to the committee. Mr. Downey, the Postal agent, was absent. In his place appeared Attorney Herbert L. Barrett, counsel for the company.

"Where are the telegrams?" asked Senator Alpheus Sanford, chairman of the committee.

"They are not here," said Barrett.

"Why not?"

"We want to be absolved from criminal and civil responsibility."

"If the committee orders you to produce them, will that be satisfactory?" said Senator Sanford.

"I don't think so," said Barrett. "We doubt the authority of the committee to summons them."

"But this committee was appointed by the Legislature and was vested with the power of an Interstate Commerce Commission," said Representative J. Weston Allen of Newton.

"Of course, we don't want to be put in the position of obstructing the committee," said Barrett.

REFUSES THE COPIES.

"There is no middle ground here. You have got to fish or cut bait. Will you produce the telegrams?" said Sanford.

"No, we will not," said Barrett.

"You know that your agent was excused yesterday upon his promise to be here today with the copies?" said Representative Briggs.

Barrett made no answer. He was asked to leave the room and the committee went into executive session to determine what course it would pursue to compel the company to divulge.

Mr. Barrett explained that in a court case the court orders the telegrams to be produced, and that order absolves the company from any liability that would arise from producing the messages contained in the telegrams. He said that he did not believe the committee of the Legislature had authority to order them produced.

"The Legislature is the highest court in this State," said Representative Allen.

Khaki Uniforms Now for Western Union Messenger Boys

The familiar blue uniforms of Western Union "mercuries" will disappear from Boston streets within a few days and their former wearers will know them no more.

Instead, the messenger boys are to be clothed in martial khaki. Persons unfamiliar with the uniform of the United States military service now may mistake a messenger boy for an undersized soldier.

The reason for the change is not patriotism, but a shortage of blue cloth, which may necessitate khaki for police and firemen also.

Two hundred Western Union boys have been measured for the new suits, which are expected to arrive in this city Friday. They will not be donned officially until the first of next week, as the new visor caps will not be on hand until that time.

GREAT PICTURE EXHIBIT PLANNED DURING JULY

Plans for making the motion picture exposition to be held in Boston July 15 to 20 the greatest event of its kind ever held in this country were formulated at a meeting in the Castle Square Hotel. Men from Europe and Canada, as well as from all parts of the United States, will come here for the exposition, P. F. Lydon presided, and Leslie Mason, editor of a picture magazine, was a speaker. Boston picture men are much interested in the candidacy of Ernest H. Horsfmann for the presidency of the National Association of Exhibitors. Committees were appointed to plan for the exposition. Harry Asher was named chairman of the committee on arrangements and Joseph Di Pesa on the publicity committee.

MAHONEY URGES ALL TO BE VACCINATED

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, chairman of the city board of health, has called upon all Bostonians, as a patriotic duty, to submit to vaccination at their earliest convenience. Reports by investigators who have been canvassing the city show, he says, that there is danger of the spread of smallpox at this time, particularly as a man named Livingstone persisted in walking about the city and taking rooms at different lodging houses after he had been suffering with smallpox for a week.

In all, 6,051 B. & A. employes took $374,550 worth of bonds.

PAWTUCKET CITIZENS TO FORM CIVIC COMMITTEE

Pawtucket, May 8.—Rapid electric car transportation to Providence and all matters of interest to the business and residential interests of the city will be considered by the Business Men's Association after a civic committee, which will be named shortly, makes a report. The idea is the outcome of a talk by George W. Dupper of Boston, who told the members what could be accomplished through the medium of a civic committee which could investigate and make recommendations.

CLEMENCEAU IS PLEASED WITH U.S. TROOPS

French Premier Pays Visit to Front Where They Help to Defend Amiens Front

By BERT FORD,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the French Battle Front, May 6 (Delayed).—Premier Clemenceau of France has paid his first visit to the American troops assisting the French in the defense of Amiens. He motored to the headquarters of the American commander and inspected the billets, being much pleased with the appearance of the American units holding that sector of the French front.

The premier praised the showing of the American soldiers and conferred for an hour with an American general. Clemenceau was warmly received by the officers and men.

There was less artillery action last night, but the aviators were busy.

Both sides were busy throwing up entrenchments in the absence of regular earthworks.

American gas experts say that the gas thrown by the Germans in glass bottles is not new. The enemy has not discovered any new brand of gas, but is using a mixture of old gases in his new method of attack.

JUDGE BLAMES GIRLS MORE THAN SOLDIERS

New York, May 8.—Justice Samuel D. Levy of the Children's Court told the city conference on charities and corrections that girls were as much to blame as soldiers for immorality since the war began. Justice Levy answered Stella Miner, secretary of the New York Girls' Protective League, who called for more protection of young women against soldiers and sailors. Miss Miner said there was unwillingness on the part of officials to punish military men on complaints made by girls.

SUFFRAGISTS SAY IT'S UP TO WILSON

Hope for Word From President to Put Amendment Over Friday in Senate

The Massachusetts branch of the National Woman's Party has received telephone information from Miss Alice Paul at Washington that the suffrage amendment is to come up again for a vote in the Senate on Friday.

Receipt of this exciting piece of news immediately caused energetic plans for a "night before" mass meeting in Boston in behalf of the amendment.

The mass meeting will be held tomorrow night on Boston Common, near the Liberty Cottage, beginning at 7:30.

The chief speaker will be Mrs. Tocan Bennett of Connecticut, who is prominent in social life and is acting chairman of the Connecticut branch of the National Woman's Party.

There will be several other speakers, men and women. Mrs. Frederick Sykes of Cambridge, member of the State Executive Committee, will call the meeting to order. She said today:

"We are about to go 'over the top.' Whether we do or not depends wholly upon President Wilson. In the House the suffrage amendment was near defeat when the President saved it by urging its passage. If he urges the Senate in like manner the amendment will pass and Friday will find us all singing 'Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!' and preparing Saturday for ratification."

MRS. FREDERICK H. SYKES, suffrage leader, who is active in plans for the "Night before" rally in Boston on eve of vote in Senate.

SUGAR CARDS TO BE ISSUED BY ENDICOTT

Bay State Manufacturers May Purchase Only by Means of Certificates

Beginning May 15, Massachusetts manufacturers will be allowed to purchase sugar only through certificates issued by Food Administrator Henry B. Endicott and the committee on Public Safety asks manufacturers to apply to Mr. Endicott at once for certificates.

All manufacturers of food products are affected with the exception of hotels, restaurants and boarding houses where products are sold on the premises, and bakers and cracker manufacturers.

In applying for certificates, manufacturers make a statement of sugar consumption at their plants for this year to date. No dealer will be allowed to sell sugar to a manufacturer except via the certificate system. Upon the filing of statements, certificates will be issued for from 80 to 100 pounds, in divisions of fifty pounds.

The seller of sugar must cancel and return to the State Food Administrator within one month from the surrender to him the certificates upon which he has made sale and delivery of sugar to manufacturer.

A manufacturer will be allowed to hold a supply of sugar equal to the certificates granted him plus what he may have had on hand at the beginning of the period. Manufacturers of essentials may obtain certificates covering their whole season's requirements, if they so desire.

Contracts to supply army and navy canteens which require an increased amount of sugar will only be taken into account for increase of allotment when recommendation is made by the officer in command to the Washington headquarters. At present the home owner who sells her preserves will not be considered a manufacturer.

A special statement is required from any manufacturer of less essentials who has increased business or increased his capacity since November 1, 1917, and prior to April 1, 1918. Such manufacturers will receive a 50 per cent. allotment. Any such concern which has started since April 1, 1918, will receive no sugar. Concerns having made additions or entered business previous to November 1, 1917, will receive but 80 per cent. allotment. Manufacturers of essentials will receive 100 per cent. allotment.

The list of essentials and less essentials has been revised as follows:

Essentials: 100 per cent. Preservers and packers of vegetables, catsup and chili sauce; fruit and milk. Manufactures of jam, jelly and preserves. Meat packers. Ice cream manufacturers, including sherbets and water ices. Druggists for medicinal purposes only. Tobacco and explosive manufacturers. Manufacturers of apple butter. Honey producers. Glycerine manufacturers.

Less essentials: 80 per cent. Manufacturers of condiments, soda water (including soda fountains and bottlers), confectioners, candy, chocolate, soft drinks, beverage syrups, fruit syrups, flavoring extracts, sweet pickles, chewing gum, cocoa, invert sugar, wines and cordials.

No sugar: Leather tanners and manufacturers of non-edible products.

All other will be included among less essentials and allotted 80 per cent.

Patriotism Confined to No Party, Says Cannon at 82

By International News Service.

Washington, May 8.—Another year has rolled around in the life of Uncle Joe Cannon, former Speaker of the House and now a member of Congress, but he pronounced Rules "big stuff" evidence of the fact that he is as much of a two-year-old.

Although on the calendar, however, he is eighty-two years old, and his colleagues gave him a rising cheer when he entered the House chamber. He was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Senator Page of Vermont, with a party of the "old boys." "Long service here brings one wide consolation," said Mr. Cannon in recalling his public career, which began with the Forty-Third Congress.

As I leave seen the gavel swung from one side of the chamber to the other I have become more and more convinced that patriotism is confined to no party, and that while this is a government through party, and always will be, all parties work for the best government of the country, according to their liking."

WOMEN'S CLUBS ELECT MISS BACON

New Englander Wins Election as Vice-President Without a Battle

Hot Springs, Ark., May 8.—Miss Georgie Bacon, anti-suffragette, is in the clear. The fight that was started against her as vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs because of her outspoken views against woman's suffrage has been a losing fight.

The little New Englander won her point without a battle. She simply smiled and pursued the even tenor of her way. The suffrage enthusiasts were even the more chagrined at the fact that though she knew a campaign was being waged against her she paid no attention to it.

The opponents of Miss Bacon were completely cast down when the last appeal to Mary Garrett Wood of New York to permit the use of her name failed. They could have secured other candidates to pit against Miss Bacon, but they were not to be considered as even probable winners.

One of the things the convention did was to extend hands across the sea to the American boys and to the Allied soldiers. They adopted a resolution which was ordered cabled to General Pershing and which told him to tell the American boys that the soldiers of the U. S. A. that the women of America were behind them 100% and will not rest the things that ought to be done in their support at home were being done and more.

The convention will listen to Dr. Anna Howard Shaw and then there will be an adjournment. President Mrs. Cowles is elected without opposition. Miss Bacon wins over a disrupted opposition for first vice-president.

Mrs. Winter of Minneapolis is second vice-president and slated for president next time. Mary Wood of New Hampshire and Mrs. John Dallas Wilkinson of Louisiana are candidates for corresponding secretary and the result of that election is in doubt. A sectional support is behind these candidates.

LOWELL YOUNG WOMEN TO BE NURSES IN FRANCE

Lowell, May 8.—Miss Margaret J. O'Dwyer of No. 148 Midland street and Miss Rita Quinn of No. 116 Fort avenue, sometime within a few days will sail for France, where they are to join the regular army nurses corps. They will be assigned to the base hospital of the Western front.

A few weeks ago Miss O'Dwyer was selected by the Mayor as supervisor of the local public nursing. She was graduated from Lowell High School and St. John's Hospital, later taking a course of surgery nursing at the Massachusetts General Hospital and a special course at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.

Miss Quinn is a graduate of the Lowell High School, State Normal School, St. John's Hospital and Carney Hospital, Boston.

U. S. BOY SCOUT OFFICERS IN U. S. COURT

Accused of Wearing Uniform Similar to That of National Military Forces

Major Willard E. Wood, Jr., local commander of the United States Boy Scouts, and four other officers of the organization were arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes today. They were charged with wearing a uniform similar to that of the United States military forces. The men pleaded not guilty and were held in $500 and personal recognizance for a hearing one week from today.

Major Wood gave his address as Columbus avenue, and the others were booked as Captain Max Davis, Walnut avenue, Roxbury; Lieutenant Raymond B. Fraser, Columbus avenue; Captain Edgar B. Smith, St. Botolph street, and Lieutenant Howard E. Garland, Westerly street, Jamaica Plain.

The defendants were allowed to go on their own recognizance on condition that they remove the insignia resembling that of the United States Army from their uniforms.

PASS NIGHT IN GUARDHOUSE

This organization has no connection with the Boy Scouts of America, to which so many Greater Boston and New England boys belong and which is well known throughout the country.

The five men were arrested by order of Captain Ralph C. Harrison, commander of the provost guard. They all spent the night at the guardhouse in the South Armory on Irvington street, and their cases were turned over to United States Attorney Judd Sweey today.

Captain Davis and the two Lieutenants were rounded up by the provost guards and taken to provost headquarters in the armory. Major Wood and Captain Smith were then sent for and also placed under arrest. They are said to have claimed that the officers' scrolls on their sleeves were ordered by their New York headquarters.

Two months ago Major Wood was called to the Department of the Northeast. In the presence of Chief of Staff Colonel Warren P. Newcomb, Lieutenant Colonel Alfred E. Williams, Adjutant, and Captain Harrison, he was told that his uniform and that of the officers was worn in violation of the law. At that time Wood is said to have given his promise to remove all similarities from the uniform.

SAYS PROMISE WAS NOT KEPT.

This promise, it is stated, was not kept and the arrests followed. The men were taken into custody at the offices of the organization in Tremont Temple and also at their homes.

The uniform in question is khaki colored, with a black facing on the breeches. Regulation leather puttees are also worn.

Major Wood is said to be a former Unitarian minister, who left the church because of his inability to agree with some of the tenets of the faith. With his wife, a former Canadian nurse, he is said to have felt that he could do better service during the war through the Boy Scouts.

MILK PRICE TO BE 14 CENTS IN JUNE

Drop off Half a Cent Decided on; Price of Pints to Stay at 8 Cents

The retail price of milk for May will be fourteen and one-half cents per quart, in June it will be fourteen cents, with pints at eight. This is announced by the New England Regional Milk Commission, which has been battling for nearly four months with the problem of fixing an equitable rate to consumers.

J. Frank O'Hare of the commission dissented from so much of the report as relates to the price to consumers. He maintained that the price should be 13½ cents and maintained that the cost figures submitted to the commission by the producers and distributors do not warrant the present high prices.

The report of the commission says, in part:

The commission finds that owing to the scarcity and high price of labor, the continuing high prices of grain and feed, as well as bottles, cans and, in fact, everything which enters into the production and delivery of milk, it is inadvisable without seriously affecting the dairying interests of New England to reduce the price of milk to consumer for the month of May. We therefore rule that the price of milk for the months of May and June shall be as follows:

"For milk delivered to family trade: "Quarts: May, 14 1-2 cents; June, 14 cents.

"Pints: May, 8 cents; June, 8 cents.

"Prices charged by stores: May, quarts, not over 13 cents; June, not over 13 cents; pints, 8 cents, May and June.

"Prices charged by distributors for bottled goods delivered to stores:

"Quarts: May, 12 1-2 cents; June, 13 cents.

"Pints: May, 7 cents; June, 7 cents."

Cincinnati man tells how to lift off any corn without hurting one bit

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an ache? Reach for a bottle of liquid paint and are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment it is few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.

It is a sticky substance which dries the moment it is applied and is said to simply shrivel the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

MISS CARLISLE WINS NEW TRIUMPH

Shows Exceptional Dramatic Powers in "Tragedy of "Nan," at the Hollis

By FRED J. McISAAC.

It is a divine discontent which causes such matinees as "The Tragedy of Nan," at the Hollis, yesterday afternoon, by Alexandra Carlisle and other members of "A Country Cousin" company.

Actors, like other people, have to earn their living by doing work which their employers demand, whether it pleases them or not. The play is the actor's employer, and it demands incessantly to be amused. A modern play may contain a few polite emotions, a moment of sentiment; a tear may be squeezed from a reluctant audience provided a laugh immediately chases it away.

Opportunities for true dramatic work are rare in such plays. A performer with the vital spark in his or her breast yearns for expression, but repression is the order of the day. Rarely a piece with a big tragic moment wins popular approval as "Justice" and "Peter Ibbetson," but ordinarily it is light comedy which reigns and an actor either accepts the public's dictum or starves.

A GRIM AFFAIR.

John Masefield's "Tragedy of Nan" is a rare tit-bit for ambitious players. It is a perfect little tragedy, as admirably proportioned as an old Greek play. The unities of place and time are preserved in it, and there are half a dozen parts requiring talent of the first order. It is such a grim affair that it had little box-office value when done in England a decade ago, or more recently in this country by a touring company. Miss Carlisle and her associates prepared it for a single production simply as a tour de force, for the satisfaction of playing powerful roles in a big play.

The production was admirable in every respect. John Harwood, the stage manager of "A Country Cousin," produced it and played the striking role of Gaffer Pearce, an aged and shackle-witted fiddler, with a sure, artistic touch.

Alexandra Carlisle appeared in the title role, Nan, whose father had been hanged for stealing sheep—this was a hundred years ago in England when stealing sheep was a capital crime. Made a household drudge by a shrewish aunt, she is tortured and tormented by people and circumstances until she is driven to murder and suicide.

LEAVES AUDIENCE BREATHLESS.

That Miss Carlisle has dramatic powers far beyond anything she has been given an opportunity to show us up to this time was soon evident. The hopeless misery of her slavery, her moment of brightness when a man made love to her, the dreadfulness of the revelation of his unworthiness, her passion, her madness and her vengeance were a crescendo of emotionalism which left the audience breathless.

Clara Blandick, as the aunt, played one of the most shrewish, vicious meanie and sour parts ever offered to an actress, and she realized every idea of the author.

Beatrice Noyes, as the daughter of the house, Nan's rival in affections, another feline soul, was as successful in her way. Alfred Lunt, as Dick Gurvil, the worthless lover, demonstrated many gifts as a character actor, and Charles Mackay, as the stolid uncle, was also happily cast. The audience, which consisted largely of professional people, remained for many minutes after the final scene and forced Miss Carlisle to make a speech.

STORROW FOR SKIP-STOP CAR PLAN

Believes Reduction of Stopping Places Would Save Thousands of Tons of Coal

James J. Storrow, Federal Fuel Administrator for New England, has requested the Boston Elevated and the other street railway companies of Massachusetts, as a nation-wide war and fuel conservation measure, to eliminate all unnecessary stopping places on their lines by the adoption of the so-called "skip-stop" plan.

This action of the Massachusetts Fuel Administration in the interest of coal economy contemplates the reduction of stopping places on all the State's street railways, where conditions reasonably permit, to not more than eight to the mile in urban districts, not more than six to the mile in suburban districts, and in interurban districts to not more than four to the mile.

Mr. Storrow's suggestion is the result of a recommendation by the director of conservation of the national fuel administration, which hopes to secure the installation of the "skip-stop" system on the railway lines of all the cities of the United States, and the proposed new apportionment of stopping places has been indorsed by the special war committee of the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners, of which Joseph B. Eastman of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission is a member.

In cities in which the "skip-stop" system has been tried it has resulted not only in a substantial saving of fuel, but in betterment of service as well, according to Chairman Frederick J. Macleod of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission.

Street railway experts estimate a possible annual saving of more than 100,000 tons of coal in Massachusetts under such a system, now in successful operation in many of the larger cities of the United States and on the street railway lines of Connecticut.

The fuel administrators of other New England States, all of whom have given their official approval to the new conservation measure, will follow the recommendation of the national fuel administration, it is anticipated, and will join with Mr. Storrow in making it operative all over New England.

TEXT OF STORROW'S LETTER.

Following is the text of Mr. Storrow's letter, addressed to the heads of the Massachusetts street railway companies:

"Improved weather conditions have temporarily relieved the acute coal shortage of last Winter. We must all realize, however, that the outlook for next Winter's steam coal supply is extremely serious and that there is likely to be an insufficient supply of coal throughout the war.

"To meet this situation all steam coal users should do their utmost to get the maximum efficiency from the coal that is available, and the street railways must do their share.

"Every time a car is stopped and started much power is used. We therefore request all street railways, in so far as local conditions may reasonably permit, to reduce the number of street car stopping places in urban districts to not more than eight to a mile, in suburban districts to not more than six to the mile, and in interurban districts to not more than four to the mile.

"This so-called 'skip-stop' system has already been put into effect on several large street railways with excellent results. In many cases it has reduced the total amount of coal consumed by these companies more than 20 per cent. At the same time the service to the public has been actually improved as it has resulted in materially speeding up the cars, reduced delays, and in general increased the efficiency of the service. This has been especially so in rush hours and in crowded districts.

"City and town officials will be urged through our local fuel committees to co-operate with the street railways in putting into effect this measure."

APPROVED BY BOARD.

Chairman MacLeod's letter addressed to Mr. Storrow expresses the attitude of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission with respect to the proposal of the Massachusetts Fuel Administration. It reads:

"In response to your inquiry I take pleasure in saying that this commission approves of the general principle of reducing the number of stopping places on street railway lines, provided such reduction is confined within reasonable limits. It has been amply demonstrated not only in other parts of the country but in this State, that the limitation of stops will result in a substantial saving of power, and hence of fuel, and that it may actually improve, rather than impair, service. This has been the case in Cleveland and other cities where it has been tried. Frequent stops mean slow service. By limiting the number, running time can be reduced and people carried more quickly to their destinations. By the use of the 'skip' or 'staggered' stop system any inconvenience from such limitation can be minimized. The commission is of the opinion that on many street railways in this Commonwealth a reduction in the number of stopping places, if reasonable and carefully made, is desirable, especially under existing conditions."

The National Fuel Administration, up to the present, has taken up the introduction of the "skip-stop" system on street railways with the State Fuel Administrators of all the States east of the Dakotas, and also with the State Fuel Administration of Texas. Among the cities in which the plan has already proved its worth as a coal saver are Washington, Cincinnati, Toledo, Detroit and Columbus.

A study of the "skip-stop" system as now in operation in Washington shows an annual saving of coal of between 9,000 and 10,000 tons, and a general reduction of running time on the various routes of from 10 to 12 per cent, according to Clarence Renshaw, of the Bureau of Conservation of the National Fuel Administration. Reports made to Mr. Renshaw indicate an annual saving of 10,000 tons of coal in Cincinnati, 7,300 tons in Toledo, 21,000 tons in Detroit, and 4,000 tons in Columbus.

GLARING LIGHTS STILL HARD PROBLEM

Victoria Bulb Latest Device on Market; Used With or Without Lenses

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

With the continuance of the warm weather, which will soon be with us for good, the amount of driving at night will naturally increase and the old nuisance of the glaring headlights will be noticed again.

Notwithstanding all the efforts made to do away with this obnoxious feature of night driving, it still is one of the things the motorist has to contend with. Numerous lenses have been devised, many of which seem to partially answer the purpose of keeping the rays of light straight ahead and down on the road so that the eyes of the approaching motorist or pedestrian will not be blinded, but no one lens has been officially adopted by States which make such things mandatory.

There is a new bulb on the market, the Victoria Non-Glare Bulb, which answers the purpose of a bulb and lens combined. By means of special construction the rays of light are thrown straight ahead and down on the road.

On an actual trial of this bulb by a motorist it was found that the bulb did what was claimed for it. It keeps the rays where you want them and not in the eyes of all comers. One of the slogans used by the distributors is: "It keeps you out of the police courts." The device is simple, costs but little more than the ordinary electric bulb and can be used with the plain glass in the headlight or without any. It is marketed by Farley & MacNeil of No. 105 Federal street, who consider it one of the best devices on the market and predict a big demand when once it is known to autoists.

Through the liberal plan put into effect by the International Motor Co., makers of Mack Motor Trucks, the employees subscribed to a total of $165,000 worth of Liberty Bonds. The plan adopted by the company permitted each employe to subscribe up to $500, paying for the same in ten monthly installments and if the employe was consistent in making the first nine payments, the company would absorb and pay the tenth installment, sending the employe the full bond. The company itself subscribed for $235,000, making a total of one half million taken.

IT'S quite important that you should know why we call them "Hart Schaffner & Marx Stores," because it is done for your sake, not for theirs; they don't pay us to do it, but they're glad to have us do it, we know

We've been in the clothing business a good many years; we know something about the business as a business; and we know something about clothing as clothing We know pretty accurately what men want when they buy; sometimes we believe we know better than they do what they want

Lots of men buy clothes that they don't really want; that is, they buy what they think is good; they want it good The trouble is they don't know; camouflage in clothing is very easy Hart Schaffner & Marx make the best clothing in the United States; there isn't any doubt about it In matters of style, of quality of materials, in excellence of workmanship, these clothes stand first We say it because we think so; we have some confidence and pride in our own judgment

We're going to try to see that the customers of our stores get what they want, even when they're not quite sure themselves; we're going to look out for your interests; what's best for you is best for us

For that reason we shall offer in the new store only the one thing—Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; no others; nothing else If they're right, you don't want anything else It's a store for men who want the best in clothes, and who are not quite sure of their own judgment as to what is best; and are willing to take advice from, and the judgment of, those who do know

BRAVES HIT OLD-TIME STRIDE

Stallings Declares Great Victory Over Dodgers Only a Slow Start

By NICK FLATLEY.

Funny what a difference just a little victory makes. The Braves, formerly the most discouraged outfit in the world, were hopping around today as full of life and pepper as though they were in the height of a winning streak. The chatter and exuberance was on display for the first time this season.

All members have been expecting the team to break loose, and when they did yesterday that settled it. The works, according to the Braves, are in. Take it from them a great Western jaunt lies directly ahead.

"I have a team that's likely to raise ructions, as I've said before," declared Manager Stallings, "and that game showed it. Once we get bunching hits, it's going to take something mighty tough to stop us. Of course, you can't tell a thing by one game, but it's a bright spot in the gloom, at all events."

Yesterday's game was about the weirdest ever played on the biggest ball yard in the far flung land.

PILED UP SOME RUNS.

The score was: Braves 16, Brooklyn 6.

So you know that someone went crazy.

Winning a game that way doesn't occur once in a season in normal times, especially with an outfit like the Braves who have been getting licked more often than Wyoming Sands the Kaiser.

In addition, the Dodgers have been winning five out of six ever since they rocketed out of last place. But that awful score tells just what happened at Braves Field when the Wilberrobbins and the Goswillings got together to open a series.

It was a terrible and unusual pastime. The Braves scored right off the reel, which made it unusual. They kept on counting, which made it more unusual; they didn't let the other fellows register at all, which made it absolutely unbelievable, also terrible—for the other fellows.

'TWAS A SLAUGHTER.

Our late companions in last place were smothered, buried and executed, and those who went out to pity the Braves wound up in the afternoon shedding salt tears for the Flatbush flock.

Larry Cheney, the only pitcher who has beaten the Giants this season, was selected to haul the Dodgers a bit further out of the cellar. Pat Patrick Ragan, who "was" a game earlier in the season, was stacked up against him.

Larry was hammered to a fare-ye-well. The Don hurled like a Boston pitcher in a world's series. Larry's pet spitter was knocked all around the park—as long as he stayed in there—while the Don's pet curve slid around bats all afternoon.

The hidden batting power of the Stallings students was evidenced all through the nine innings. All the Dings we have predicted during and since the southern trip were exemplified.

RAWLINGS HITS 1,000.

The Dodgers were merely the lambs brought to the slaughter, for which the 2,000 or so daily faithful have been waiting. Maybe Braves style will keep up the good work and maybe not. But they have proved that they have it in 'em.

Johnny Rawlings was the particular hero of the victory occasion, getting five hits in as many marches to the plate. Every time he swung he busted whe where nobody could get it.

Al Wickland was a close second in the calcium line, clouting out a pair of stout triples during the afternoon, one to left and the other to right.

IN CORBETT'S CORNER

by James J. Corbett.

This is the third of a series of articles which Mr. Corbett has written giving the inside details of the financial side of the Jim Jeffries-Jack Johnson fight at Carson City, Nev. The story comes from Jack Gleason, "The Man Behind," and forms one of the most romantic chapters in pugilism. Many of the details which this series of articles discusses never before have been published. The next chapter will appear tomorrow.

Through the engineering of Jack Gleason it was Sam Berger who became Jeffries' boxing mate in the stage exhibitions at the Wigwam Theatre. Gleason was very fond of Berger, who was a clean, hard-working fellow and he had made the condition with Jeffries that if he went into exhibition work Berger was to be his sparring partner.

At that time Berger was fairly well known along the Pacific slope as a heavyweight boxer and Gleason, who had seen him in some of his bouts, felt that he was the man who could bring out the best there was in Jeffries in that era.

But Jeff hadn't heard much about Berger and had other ideas as to a sparring partner. Gleason, however, held out in the advocacy of Berger and insisted that Jeff give Berger $250 for his work of one week as a sparring companion.

Jeff balked at first but finally agreed to give Berger $200 with an extra $50 if he made good.

At that time Gleason's only interest in Berger was a friendly one. But when he insisted upon Berger as a sparring partner, for Jeffries, he was "casting bread upon the waters."

The kindness which he did for Berger then was repaid a hundredfold, and in the end enriched Jack Gleason $100,000 or more.

JEFF NOT ANXIOUS TO WORK.

Jeffries was such a spectacular success at the Wigwam Theatre that William Morris, then a rising power in the vaudeville and moving picture world, decided that Jeff would be a great drawing card on the road.

So he offered the big champion a contract calling for $2,500 per week for a period of twenty weeks. That meant exactly $50,000 for Jeffries for less than five months' work. But Jeff wasn't excited about it at first.

"That one week of performing at the Wigwam Theatre had spelled awful labor to Jeffries and then was a bit too bulky and out of condition to fancy hard work.

But Gleason finally convinced Jeff that the $50,000 was about the easiest money that he ever could earn, and Jeffries accepted. At the time of doing so he announced that he had made Berger his manager as well as his sparring partner.

MADE BERGER MANAGER.

Jeffries and Berger then went on tour, visiting every principal city in the country. Everywhere Jeff was greeted as an idol of pugilism.

All of this was a revelation to him. In his championship days Jeff was not idolized as had been the other champions. Jeff, abrupt, was surly, at times, and not made many warm friends during his days as an active champion.

The fans acclaimed him a great fighter but they didn't worship him nor troll him around the streets and make a fuss over him as they did over John L. and some of the other popular gladiators.

But, on that tour, the public rose up almost overnight and came to Jeffries a succession of ovations that tied with the days of those that were given to John L. in the days of his greatest glory.

The fans recognized in Jeffries the only man who had a chance to wrest the heavyweight crown from Johnson. And it was their hope that by showing in what great esteem Jeff was held that the big white gladiator would be influenced to harken to pleadings of the white race—"Fight Jack Johnson."

As the months went by Jeff's drawing power on the road increased and the crowds everywhere went wild over him. The clamor for a meeting between Jeffries and Johnson grew greater.

But all through the Summer of 1909 Jeffries continued to insist that he would not fight the negro—that he was through with the ring for good.

JEFF TAKES UP DEFI.

Naturally, Johnson, also on a theatrical tour, made capital of this fact. He issued statements which declared that Jeff and every other white fighter was afraid to meet him.

And with each new daft from Johnson — each new Johnson boast—the pressure put upon Jeffries to fight the negro grew all the greater.

Along in the Fall of 1909 Jeffries reached New York City and put up at the Hotel Albany. An army of newspaper men swooped down upon him and begged him to fight Johnston.

They showed him the printed interviews in which the negro had declared that Jeffries was afraid to meet him.

Jeffries read all those articles over slowly and pondered over the matter for several days. And then he summoned the newspaper boys to his room and thrilled the white race by the announcement:

"I will fight Jack Johnson."

HORNSBY SAYS HE'LL QUIT AFTER SEASON

St. Louis, May 8.—Rogers Hornsby, slugging shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced today that he was going to quit big league baseball at the end of the current season. Hornsby is going to retire so that he can spend all of his time with his mother at their home in Fort Worth, Tex.

The shortstop's mother is feeble and unable to travel. The youngster recently claimed exemption from the draft on her account.

YESTERDAY'S GAME was not any kind of a record, except for this season and the Braves. Providence shut out Philadelphia, 12 to 0, in the National League in 1882, and Detroit alsbaseball shutland, 12 to 0, in 1901 in the other circuit.

JIMMY SMITH, who has been injured with la grippe at Atlanta, left for where the Braves were in the far South, has returned. He will rejoin the team when it hits Chicago on the essay into the West.

THE FORT STRONG nine will battle Camp Devens at the Home of Big Things Sunday. Bailey, who was once an American League southpaw of fame, will be the barbarities against Harold Janvrin's squad.

B. M. HAPGOOD announces that no more pass balloons have been reported back to headquarters in the gas bags which he released again next season, if there is any real reason.

MURRAY, THE Everett phenom, has been canned by the Braves. His arm didn't recover from its Southern soreness, so he was handed his unconditional release.

AFTER LOOKING at the Dodgers one would never blame Al Mamaux for deserting the team to take up war work. Al, despite his connection with the Pirates, likes to trail along with winners.

ROSS TO TINKER WITH BELMONT GOLF LINKS

Donald Ross, the country's most famous golf architect, has come North from his regular job on the Pinehurst links and at present is looking over the Belmont Spring course, with a view to making it just about the best in the country.

The famous Scot, who has built practically all the great courses in the United States, promises to place Belmont in a class by itself.

He was out on the links today and was more than enthusiastic over the prospect of building an ideal course. The gear land purchased by the club affords a chance to change the Belmont "round" and greatly increase the distance.

"The land," declared Ross, "offers an opportunity for great things. I can easily be made over into one of the finest courses in the country. If the club is willing, it will be an easy job."

The club is willing, because President Burgess declared that Ross had been brought here to look things over and then go ahead as he saw fit.

CYCLONE RESS IN HUB; ON EDGE FOR KILONIS

Cyclone Ross reached Boston today declaring that he will prove conclusively he is a better man on the mat than John Kilonis, in spite of the fact that the Greek has the better of the battles between them up to date.

Ross declares that when he steps on the stage at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night he will not be "road weary," as he was in their last meeting, and that Kilonis will find it out in a hurry.

ROBSON DESIRES RETURN BOUT WITH EAGAN

Losing Close Verdict to Dorchester Boy, Malden Tommy Seeks Another Quarrel

By J. P. MURPHY.

Although practically admitting Joe Eagan, Dorchester battler, was entitled to the award over Tommy Robson of Malden, in the feature twelve-round set-to at the Armory A. A.'s weekly entertainment, at the Arena, Frank McCarthy, manager of Robson, stated today that he still believes his charge is Eagan's master and declares he will clearly prove it if only given another chance.

"This may sound like a loser's wail," said McCarthy in the AMERICAN office, but it isn't and to show that I mean business I am willing to rematch Robson with Eagan on a winner-take-all basis, provided that the victorious man turns over the entire receipts, expenses excluded, to the Red Cross or AMERICAN'S Camp Devens Baseball Fund.

McCarthy has put up his proposition to "Cap" Thomas, Eagan's pilot, and there is a strong possibility that the two boxers will be seen right back in the next Tuesday's main attraction at the St. Botolph street rink.

DATE REMAINS OPEN.

Battling Levinsky and Charley Weinert were originally billed for this date, but the latter has been called to the colors and forced to cancel.

Undoubtedly Matchmaker Alec McLean will be perfectly willing to again put on Eagan and Robson. It now remains for the scrappers to get busy.

Robson proved a complete surprise to the insiders, many of whom figured that he would be a set-up for Eagan, after the latter's brilliant work in the Middle West. As it was, the Dorchester lad won only by the slightest of margins, though deserving the honors bestowed upon him by Referee Larry Conley.

Eagan had Robson on the verge of a knockout in the ninth round, but lacked power to finish him.

After taking severe punishment about the body in the early part of this chapter, Eagan uncorked a right uppercut and sent Robson to his corner.

Plainly dazed by the force of the rap, Tommy crawled into a crouching position and covered up the best he knew how, while Eagan pummeled away with lefts and rights.

HIT IT UP IN HIGH.

Finally, exhausted by his efforts, Eagan stood at the mercy of his beaten foe. Meanwhile, Robson pulled himself together, rushed Eagan into a corner and was again attacking with both hands when the bell sounded to end the round.

This was by far the most exciting session of the fight, except for occasional flashes by Robson, which, at times, brought the crowd to its feet.

Eagan, too, had his innings and many times made the Maldenite with left hooks and short right arm jolts, but at the other periods, when Robson looked bad Eagan was not there.

Both men were under the agreed weight—153 pounds at 3 o'clock. The exact figures were not announced, but it was reported that Eagan scaled in at 147½, and Robson at 150.

Johnny Noonan of Dorchester, beat Johnny Young of Roxbury, Boston, in the eight-round semi-final. Noonan upset Buckley with a right uppercut in the sixth round. The Peninsula lad was up in a flash and quickly weathered the storm to the finish.

NOONAN PUTS ONE OVER.

According to George Freeman, manager of Buckley, Noonan agreed to make 131 pounds ringside, but when weighing-in time came he refused to get on the scales. Buckley is eager to get another crack at Noonan, but stipulates that the latter must make weight.

Johnny Gray of Chelsea scored an easy victory in the six-round curtain raiser, beating Young Bruno of Weymouth after a rugged mill.

Young Chodo of Commonwealth Pier gained a draw with Mike Cantle of Lawrence.

GOSSIP OF GLOVELAND

By J. P. MURPHY

JIM CHILLEY, matchmaker of the Unity C. C., Lawrence, lands a fistic treat for tonight's card, by bring Freddie (Young) Britt of New Bedford and Phinney Rock, fast-stepping Lowell boy. They are to traverse the twelve-round route, coming in at 130 pounds at 7 p. m.

BILLY PARKER and Henri Le Bouef, rivals of the first water, will clash in a twelve-round bout at New Bedford next Monday night. Both have big followings in the Whaling City and bid fair to draw a record crowd.

SOME OF the best boxing and vaudeville talent hereabouts have volunteered their services for the benefit to Johnny Gallant at the Douglas A. C. clubrooms, Lawrence, tomorrow night. Johnny is in poor physical condition and badly in need of funds. His friends have responded nobly and confidently expect a huge gathering will turn out.

JOE EAGAN is in Class 1 of the draft, and subject to call at a moments notice.

TERRIBLE TERRY BROOKS, nowhoy miller, will be the principal actor on at the Douglas A. C., Chelsea, next Monday night. He is to meet Charley (Kid) Thomas of Philadelphia.

THE WEINERT-LEVINSKY bout, booked for the Arena one week from last night is off. Weinert has been called to the colors, so was forced to cancel.

DAILY HOME RUN BY BIG BABE IS WASTED

Ruth Finds Walter Johnson for Four-Ply Slam—Leonard Is Bad and Griffs Win, 7-2

Washington, May 8.—Hon. Walter Johnson hurled his second game of the season against the Red Sox. He did not apply the brush this time, as he did at Boston last month.

This Johnson might have done if Dick Hoblitzel, and not Babe Ruth, had been doing duty on the first corner for the visitors. The tally of the combat ended 7 to 2 in favor of Hon. Walter and the Senators, with the Sox' two counters coming in the sixth when Ruth busted the ball over the right field wall.

It was Ruth's third homer in as many playing days and an all-week—and—a—yard—wide smash. Sprunk opened the sixth round for Boston by working in a scratch hit. Then along came Ruth. Keerock! He busted the ball out of the yard and Amos trotted over the plate in advance of him.

Leonard's game was a bad one, but Barrow refused to derrick him. The locals, who never do much hitting, combed Dutch's slants for fourteen blows. Johnson garnered three of them and so did Morgan. Milan, Judge and Ainsmith also larroped Leonard's delivery hither and anon.

Although having admittedly one of the most formidable outfits in Ban Johnson's organization, Ed Barrow is by no means satisfied with the Red Sox as they line up at present and already has taken steps to strengthen his array.

Second Baseman Frankie Truesdale, formerly of the Yankees and last season with the pennant winning Toronto team of the International League, has joined the team.

Truesdale fortifies the Sox against the probable early loss of Fred Thomas, the only other utility infielder with the club. He is in Class 1 of the Draft and likely to be called to the colors any time.

Aside from Thomas, the only other Red Sox regular subject to army service is Walter Mayer, third-string catcher.

7 KINDS OF DOMESTIC TOBACCOS

5 KINDS OF TURKISH TOBACCOS

What do you look for in a cigarette?

YOU want fragrance, of course—and smoothness—and body, so you know you're really smoking. No one tobacco can give you everything you want.

You can get these different qualities only by combining the flavors of different tobaccos.

It takes twelve different tobaccos—five Turkish and seven American—to produce the flavor that has made Mecca the favorite cigarette of over a million smokers.

These different tobaccos are not just mixed, but are still-blended.

The twelve tobaccos are placed in the blending-still, and moist heat is passed through until all the different flavors are drawn into one, much as the full flavor of tea is drawn out by steeping. Only in this way can be obtained the true Mecca flavor.

A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND LOVE

Milton, Called Away to a Stricken Father, Finds That the Attack Is Not Serious

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LII.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

THE illness which called Milton Van Saun so abruptly from his betrothed's side did not prove as serious as was at first feared. Edward Van Saun had had a slight paralytic shock, but after the first few days it was evident that he was on the way to partial convalescence.

"I have been afraid of Dad's having an attack like this," Milton telephoned to Dora on the morning after the seizure, "but the doctor thinks that in a little while he will be almost as well as he has been for the last six months. Of course, he will never be a well man again—and we have known that for some time."

"Poor dear—and he is so patient!" sympathized Cynthia when she heard this report.

"It is hard on Dora and Milton," Mrs. Livingston commented. "I am glad Dora persuaded Milton that they were not to live at the Van Sauns' after their marriage. It would not be fair to either of them."

"I did not persuade Milton," Dora corrected. "It was Mr. Van Saun himself who made the decision. He said we would be happier by ourselves. That was why we decided to take a suite at a hotel for a few months, while we look about to see where we want to live."

"It will be lonely for Mr. Van Saun, won't it?" Cynthia suggested.

Mrs. Livingston raised her eyebrows. "What else must parents expect? I am not complaining that Dora must leave us. If her father and I can spare her, Mr. Van Saun can spare his son."

She waited in vain for further argument from her niece. But the girl did not remind her aunt that husband and wife had each other, while Edward Van Saun would have nobody to share his loneliness.

"Well," Mrs. Livingstone continued when Cynthia did not speak, "we must get ahead immediately with the wedding preparations. You, Cynthia, my dear, have not an hour to lose."

In a Quandary.

Again Cynthia made no demur. Nor did she voice any protest during the days following when she was taken from shop to shop, and from one dressmaker to another. She had given her promise. She would see this thing through.

Yet one day she expressed her determination to stop on her way to town from an afternoon's shopping and see Mr. Van Saun, telephoning his nurse to that effect. Her heart ached as she thought of how lonely the sick man must be.

"Don't you want to stop, too, Dora?" she queried as the two girls rode up the avenue together.

"No," Dora said. "I don't care about it. You are more in the habit of going to see Mr. Van Saun than I am. I guess he likes you better than he does me."

"Oh, no," Cynthia protested.

"I don't blame him if he does," Dora declared frankly. "You are lots nicer than I am, Cyn. So is Milton. I will say for him that he is a good son. I have only seen him for a few minutes at a time since his father's attack. He goes to the office, stops at our house for a flying visit on the way home, then goes back to his father. But," with a shrug of the shoulders, "I don't care. I have not had a real talk with him since that night that they telephoned to him about Mr. Van Saun. By the way, did you know what Milton wanted to talk to me about that night?" Cynthia shook her head. "No, I had no idea."

"Well, I'll tell you so you can be on your guard if he asks you about the same matter. Well"—she stopped as if finding it hard to continue—"to tell the truth, Cyn—he wanted to ask me about that afternoon that I sent you into the library to see Gerald."

"What about it? I don't understand," Cynthia said.

"Oh, I can't explain, Cyn!" Dora replied desperately. "It's all a mix-up! You'll just have to take my word that it's all right. Only—if Milton should ever say anything to you about it—I mean if he should ask you when you got home that day—just forget what time it was. What makes you look so queer?"

"Because," the other girl said slowly, "I was just remembering that he did ask me that very question awhile ago."

"And what did you tell him?" Dora demanded breathlessly, sitting up very straight.

A Right to Know

"I told him the truth. I told him that it was after six o'clock. Why, Dora? What is it all about? What difference does it make when I got home that day?"

"Oh, nothing! Never mind!" Dora exclaimed impetuously. "Please try to forget it all, Cyn! I've gotten myself in a mess—but it will blow over. You need not worry."

"But," Cynthia demurred, "if it concerns me, dear, I have a right to know about it."

"It concerns me!" her companion insisted. "Don't bother your head about it." Then, as her cousin continued to look anxious she burst forth impulsively, "For pity's sake, Cyn, why need you fuss over the thing? You are quite safe. You are going to be married to the man you love—everything has come your way. You are one of the fortunate women—but, my dear, please believe that I am glad you are happy. I wish I were, too!"

"Dora!" Cynthia caught the trembling hands in hers. "Dear child, what is the matter? Are you unhappy?

"No, of course not!" with an hysterical giggle. "That's just it: I, silly little Dora Livingstone, who never had a serious thought in her life! I am supposed to be perfectly carefree and happy, so I must be, even though I am marrying a man I don't really love, just because it's expected of me?"

"There, dear," as the car slowed up in front of the Van Saun house, "forgive my foolishness and love me in spite of it, please! And forget all the crazy things I have said!"

Puss in Boots Jr.

By David Cory

NOW, you remember in the last story that King Blue Eyes and Puss Junior had brought the Queen's adopted daughter into the forest where the Little Men of the Wood lived. And then King Blue Eyes had said he would marry her and make her Queen over them. Well, as soon as he said that the Princess said "yes," and they were married by a little dwarf priest and lived happily ever after.

Well, pretty soon Puss went upon his way, and by and by, not so very long, he came to a great, big, enormous elephant who was singing this song:

Oh, the wind is in the palm trees
Of my country far away,
And the circus man is calling
For me to come and play,
But I am sad and lonely,
And the popcorn tastes like punk,
For I have lost the little key
That locks my circus trunk.

And then the poor big animal swung his head back and forth and gave a great big sigh.

"Cheer up!" said little Puss Junior. "Maybe you'll find the key."

"What's that you said?" cried the big animal. "Find the key? Goodness me! I've locked everywhere for it, under the bureau and behind the bed and in the old grandfather clock."

And then, all of a sudden, Puss said, "Here it is!" And sure enough, right there on the ground was a big brass key, for the elephant had a trunk that was almost as big as a house, let me tell you.

"Well, I'm very much obliged to you, little cat," said the great big tremendous animal. "Get on my back and I'll give you a ride." So Puss climbed on top of the elephant and away they went until they came to the circus tent, where the monkeys were playing a game of ball and the fat woman wrapped herself in a shawl.

And when the clown saw him he said: "Bless my stars! Here's Puss in Boots Junior!" And then his wife came out, who was the beautiful circus queen, you remember, and gave Puss a hug.

"Do you remember, Puss dear," she said, "the last time I saw you I was rocking to sleep a little baby boy? Well, he's grown now to be a big boy and rides on a white horse. Why, he's the best rider in all the circus. You must stay tonight and see the show!"

Well, you won't be surprised when I tell you what Puss did. And I'd like to know what little boy or girl wouldn't stay to see the circus.

The Origin of Cork.

The outer spongy bark of the cork oak, which grows in the south of France and Spain, constitutes the substance known as cork. This outer bark is periodically stripped off the tree, soaked for a time in water and the surface subsequently charred close to the pores.

How to Banish Horrid Blackheads

A specialist has just perfected a complexion treatment guaranteed to banish blackheads, lighten the skin and give you a fresh, clear, youthful complexion. We have seen results truly marvellous. All you do is to gently massage this new substance into the skin and then thoroughly wash with warm water and a face cloth. It is really wonderful how quickly it dissolves blackheads and clears the complexion. Women who use it say it is better than any kind of soap and that it does more good to their complexions than any kind of cold cream they have ever used. It is safer than soap because it does not contain caustic soda or caustic potash to dry and age the skin. It is better than cold cream; it is greaseless, and therefore does not contain mineral oil to grow hair. This new cream-like substance is called Ara-Mars. A few ounces is guaranteed to improve your complexion or your dealer is authorized to return your money without question. Our friends always get Ara-Mars at Liggett's and Fliess's. Save this notice.

Make-Believe Romances

THEY HAPPEN VERY, VERY OFTEN

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT long ago an elderly woman died in a certain Southern city, and the mourning for her was so general that her funeral suggested a public official's rather than an old gentlewoman's.

There was hardly a family in town who at some time or another had not been helped by the sweet-faced old lady, who always wore black. To the rich she gave her sympathy in time of trouble; to the poor she gave food, clothing and money.

Her entire life was spent doing works of mercy. Yet, for all that, she was a most comfortable type of saint, with no "holier than thou" reservations about her. She loved a joke; she was absolutely tolerant of human frailty, and she wanted every one to be happy—particularly the young people.

She had been the inspiration of half a dozen young men that had turned out more than well in their various professions, and as for the lovers whose disagreements she adjusted, their name was legion.

Of course, the old lady had had a romance in her own life, but of that she never spoke to any one. Every word and deed, however, was eloquent of its ennobling effect. It seems there had been a fiance who had enlisted with the boys in gray, and who had been among the missing in one of the great battles of the Civil War.

She had been a young woman—twenty-five or six, perhaps—when she had put on widow's weeds for the man who was never to be her husband, and from that time to the day of her death she never lightened her mourning.

Before grief came to her, people remembered her as a high-spirited girl, fond of dancing and amusement, but inclined to be a little high-handed and overbearing. The young men with whom she had grown up had been glad enough to take her to dances and places of amusement, but she had been a little too masterful for any of them to care for her deeply.

The dance was from New Orleans, where she had spent a good deal of time visiting relatives, and the news of his death almost immediately followed the announcement of her engagement.

Curiously enough, after sorrow had transformed her, men estimated her differently, and there was not an eligible in that town who at some time or another, had not proposed marriage to the ministering angel in black.

But Miss Agatha—we'll call her that because it wasn't her name—could never be persuaded to forget the young soldier from Louisiana whom none of her fellow townspeople had ever seen.

The more persistent of the eligibles thought she would forget in time, but apparently there was no time limit to Miss Agatha's loyalty. And after years of waiting, people grew to regard her decision as final—she would never marry.

Then quite suddenly, one day, she died without a bit of warning. She had been about as usual—they found her sitting in her chair with some dainty baby garment on which she had been sewing when the end came.

They gave her a funeral the like of which that Southern city had never before seen; her passing was a genuine grief in every household.

What was left of her fortune—she had been recklessly generous with her capital—went to the New Orleans relatives, who arrived presently and took possession of the old Colonial house with the pillared front and the lovely box-bordered garden.

Over the drawing room mantel, looking down reproachfully on the intruders, was the portrait of the young Confederate soldier in gray.

The rest of this story is difficult to tell; it was related, however, with gales of laughter by the relatives who had come to take possession. It seemed there had been any soldier lover. He was a pure invention of Miss Agatha's to "save her face."

TRIPE ROLL.

(1,515 Total Calories; 281 Protein Calories.)

Tripe, 1 pint riced white potato, ½ chopped onion, 1 egg, ½ pound cooked sausage meat, 1 tablespoonful sausage or bacon fat, 4 teaspoonfuls salt.

Purchase 1¼ pounds honeycomb tripe. Trim to a rectangular shape. Save the remainder for escalloped tripe. Boil tripe until very tender and drain. Add three teaspoonfuls salt five minutes before taking from the fire. Blend 1¼ cupfuls of potato, one teaspoonful salt, the meat, egg and onion and spread on the honeycomb side of the tripe. Roll, fasten with toothpicks. Spread the remaining potato on top and brush the entire roll with the sausage fat. Place in a covered baking-dish about the size of the roll and bake in a moderate oven one-half hour. Remove cover and quickly brown the top. Place on a hot platter and let stand on the stove-shelf five minutes before serving. Slice with a sharp knife. Cooked, well-seasoned, chopped meat may be used in place of the sausage.

War-Time Scrapple

(2,463 Total Calories; 491 Protein Calories.)

Two pounds shin of beef, ½ pound cooked liver, 1 tablespoonful sage, about 2 cupfuls cornmeal, 1 tablespoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful pepper, water.

Cover the soup bone well with water and cook slowly till meat is thoroughly done and begins to drop from bone. Then remove meat and bone. Cut off meat and put through food-chopper together with the liver. Return chopped meat to the stock and add the salt, pepper and sage. When it boils add cornmeal, which should be barely moistened with cold water. The exact quantity to add will depend upon the amount of stock. Cook very slowly for at least an hour. Pour into two greased bread-pans and allow to chill thoroughly. Turn out of mold, slice thin, and fry till brown. This will keep for a long time in a cold place.

Escalloped Tripe

(1130 Total Calories; 233 Protein Calories.)

One cupful boiled tripe, ½ cupful rice, 1 cupful cooked celery, 1-2 cupful buttered crumbs, ¼ teaspoonful paprika, 1 tablespoonful margarine, 1 tablespoonful flour, 1 teaspoonful salt, ⅛ teaspoonful pepper, 1 egg, 1 cupful milk.

Melt the margarine, add the flour and seasonings, cook till bubbling; add the milk gradually, stirring constantly, and cook till thickened. To the white sauce thus made add the egg well beaten. Cook the rice in boiling salt water until tender. Drain, and pour cold water over it. Place in a greased baking-dish layers of rice, tripe cut into small pieces, cooked celery and sauce. Add remaining ingredients in the same order. Cover with crumbs and bake till thoroughly heated and brown on top. Tomato sauce may be substituted for the white sauce for variety.

TROUSERETTES FOR GIRLS ON FARMS

College Graduates Enrolling in Large Numbers for Summer Work in Gardens

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

Fifteen hundred college girls will be graduated next month from the girls' schools and colleges in Massachusetts. In cap and gown, will they come, these serious minded young women, burning with the zeal of conquest, yearning with the desire to "do something" big in the world.

And this year, contrary to the years that have passed, the sweet girl graduates are actually to do it. Three hundred of them already have enrolled for the "back to the farm" movement, and 300 of them will go on to the land, to plow and to till the soil, to plant and to weed, and to finally gather in the harvest.

Miss America this year is to take her place shoulder to shoulder with her brother. Miss America will carry a hoe, while he carries a rifle. Miss America will sleep in a cottage, while he sleeps in a tent, but Miss America will toil knee deep in the moist ditches, even as he toils in the clayey trenches of northern France. And Miss America and her brother will both be working in the same cause—the cause of patriotism.

FOR ONE BIG CAUSE.

It is for this one big cause that enrollments of college girls so far have amounted to 300, and the season is yet young. From Smith, from Emerson, Boston University, Radcliffe, Lasell, Simmons and Wellesley, the enrollments have come in, and it is as yet practically impossible for the percentage of each college to be allotted.

It is a far cry from the cap and gown and the snowy dress that marks the sweet girl graduate as the true product of June, to the coarse and roomy "trouserettes," the shady farm hat and the baggy blouse that will be the costume of the regular "farmerette," but it is a costume that Miss America has already, and one that she is going to be very proud to don.

"We can do as good work as men can do on the farms," is what they say, "and we expect the same treatment. If we can do the work of the men, then we can demand the pay of the men. Living and working in the open is sure to be healthful, and we will be doing a patriotic service and earning our living at the same time."

BLISTERS ON HANDS.

White hands that never knew a blister—save that which came from rowing in the "eight" or paddling a canoe on the Charles—will grow brown and calloused before the end of the season. Backs that have never known a strain will ache and grow numb, as they bend over beds of fragrant onions, or weed corn, or potatoes or peas. All of this, the girls know and expect. They realize that they have hard work ahead of them, and they are ready for it.

Fifteen young college women are to be sent next week to a fancy farm in Lancaster, and about the same time a squad of seven will be sent to another farm, in the northern part of the State. Employers on both of these farms appreciate conditions, and are anxious to release as many men as possible for war work, by employing the "farmerettes."

The conditions under which the "farmerettes" are to live are pleasant ones, in both of these cases. On the farm in the northern part of the State a house mother or matron has been secured. She is a woman of middle age, who will not only mother the girls, but will do the cooking and look after the house in which the girls are domiciled.

For these "farmerettes" are to have a small house on the estate to themselves. They will be provided with plenty of food from the main house, with vegetables from the gardens that they themselves will cultivate, milk from the farm dairy, freshly-churned butter, and meat.

TO GET COARSE FOOD.

"We have only been cautioned not to feed them too well," said the man who owns this beautiful place. "We have been asked to give them plenty of good food, but not to make any difference between them and the men laborers. They have good food, but it is coarse food such as they need for the work.

"I don't know just exactly the kind of food these women farmers will need," he continued, thoughtfully—"but I imagine that it will not differ much from what is given the men, save that I do not believe that they will eat anywhere near the quantities. Anyway—it's an experiment, and we need the labor, so I am willing to try it out."

FALL RIVER OPERATIVES WANT 25 PER CENT. MORE

Fall River, May 8.—The five textile unions of this city will tonight act upon resolutions recommending that the operatives petition at once for a 25 per cent. increase in pay.

It is said that without doubt the unions will vote to make such a demand, and that the petition will be presented to the mill owners tomorrow night. If the increase is obtained it will become effective June 3, at the end of the present six months wage agreement.

Mill owners say that the wages now paid are the highest in history, and that since January, 1916, the operatives have received increases aggregating 57 per cent.

ROBERT HARRON, whose acting as The Boy hero in "Hearts of the World," will be seen by the ADVERTISER-AMERICAN newsboys at the Majestic Theatre next Monday night.

"Kaiser Bill" Is Borne to Rest in War Stamp Jubilee in Gotham

New York, May 8.—"Kaiser Bill. Died of W. S. S. 1918."

Such is the legend on the silver plate of a coffin which was followed by thousands of joyous "mourners" along Park row yesterday.

It now rests in a tent at the foot of Ben Franklin's statue, where anybody who buys a war saving stamp is privileged to drive a nail in the Kaiser's coffin.

The investor may also take a peek into the casket and see William Hohenzollern's royal features slowly disintegrating into the likeness of a grinning skull. The United States Navy Band preceded Emperor Bill to his resting place, playing Chopin's funeral march and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

The mock funeral was the merriest incident of a day's activities which sent the total sales of war savings stamps in New York shooting beyond the $12,000,000 mark. Almost $1,000,000 has been taken in since May 1.

NEWSBOYS WILL SEE 'HEARTS OF WORLD'

Rare Treat for Advertiser-American Salesmen at the Majestic Monday

"Hearts of the World" is to be seen by the newsboys of Boston. The many stories about soldiers of America, England and France and the defeats of the boches stirred young ADVERTISER-AMERICAN salesmen and already there is the buzz of excitement in the ranks of the boys.

The big newsboy drive will take place at the Majestic Theatre Monday night. Those who will see D. W. Griffith's great drama of love and war will be chosen on the merit system.

From all accounts it is going to be "some party." The newsboys will gather at the office of the ADVERTISER-AMERICAN and march to the theatre, where seats have been reserved for them. There is talk of a special band to escort the guests and a speech of welcome from the stage, and other features.

Some idea of the treat may be gained from the fact that in "Hearts of the World" the boys will see more than a million fighting men, 20,000 horses in action, miles of artillery, the march of legions, squadrons of airplanes, fleets of Zeppelins, the destruction of cities and the charge of tanks.

They will also see French children in their homes, the British Parliament in session, the French Cabinet assembled and other scenes that will help them better to understand the principles back of America's part in the world war.

LILLIAN RUSSELL GOOD MEDICINE FOR ANNA HELD

New York, May 8.—Anna Held, whose brave fight for life against the ravages of a rare and almost incurable disease has attracted widespread notice, cheered up noticeably when informed that Lillian Russell had come from Pittsburgh to see her. Physicians and nurses had banned all outsiders from the sick room, but Miss Held demanded that Miss Russell be ushered in at once, and soon the two comedy stars were chatting.

"Miss Russel is the best medicine I have had so far," declared Miss Held later.

FUNERAL FRIDAY OF CHARLES H. COTTON

The funeral of Charles H. Cotton, said to have been a descendant of Rev. John Cotton of Puritan fame, will take place on Friday at 2:30 p. m., at Immanuel Baptist Church, Newton. It will be preceded by prayers at the family home, No. 77 Bigelow street, Brighton, at 1:30. Mr. Cotton was born in Centre Harbor, N. H., October 25, 1849. For thirty-five years he conducted a meat business at No. 50 North street, Boston. He is survived by a widow, formerly Miss Mary C. Preble of Cape Neddick, Me., and by six sons.

SECRETARY McADOO IS UNABLE TO LEAVE ROOM

Washington, May 8.—William G. McAdoo, railway director and Secretary of the Treasury, was still in bed today with a severe attack of tonsilitis. Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the President's physician, said that it would be several days before Mr. McAdoo could return to his duties.

Elevated Public Control Bill Much Improved

Governor McCall Wisely Holds That People at End of Ten Years Should Have Free Choice

The Public Control bill for the Boston Elevated Railway, as now reported by the Ways and Means Committee, is much improved. It is by no means perfect, but it is perhaps as good as a compromise can be.

It establishes absolute, unqualified public operation of the Boston Elevated Railway, and it provides that public operation shall not be discontinued automatically, but shall go on unless and until the Legislature shall discontinue it.

Thus the Governor has improved upon the bill originally submitted by the Public Service Commission, for by the Governor's insistence the public stands considerably in the position of a man who has insisted upon a "Heads I win, tails you lose" agreement. If the public control at the end of ten years is not successful, the public may pass the railroad back to the stockholders; if it is successful the public may go on with public control.

Under the Public Service Commission's plan, the State was definitely committed to continue control unless and until the stockholders were willing to assume control once more. It did not seem important to the commission to provide otherwise, because, from the commission's knowledge of the probabilities of superior results from operation by the public, the commission did not consider it at all likely that the plan of public operation would be a failure. Therefore, in the mind of the commission the advantage of giving the public an opportunity to pass the railway back in case of failure seemed rather remote. But the Governor held that in the extraordinary conditions of the day the public might find itself to be taking on a greater burden than it supposed, and it might want to unload this burden at the end of ten years.

In any event, the Governor considered that it would be wise, whatever the probabilities might be, to permit the public to exercise its free will at the end of ten years. In successfully insisting upon this public safe-guard, the Governor has acted wisely, energetically and courageously in the public interest.

The committee itself has also improved the bill in several respects. While meeting the Governor's demand that the road may be unloaded by the public at the end of ten years without the consent of the stockholders if it should so desire, the committee also provided that the stockholders might not be able to take the road away from the public at the end of ten years and after it had been fattened up with the public money by merely getting control of a majority of the Senate—a task not at all difficult, as everybody knows, for an organized and determined special interest.

By the terms of the bill as improved by the committee, the public control shall continue unless the Legislature on behalf of the public shall determine to discontinue it. In other words, those who may desire to grab the railway, after the public has made it a paying proposition, will not only have to get a majority of the Senate, but a majority of the House, a much more representative and responsible body, and the Governor, and, in all human probability, the people of the State on a referendum. So this part of the bill, which the AMERICAN was most alarmed about, is now, as reported, sufficiently safe-guarded, and the 85,000 citizens who signed the petition for public control may feel assured that if the bill with the present provision for continuance should pass, whatever is done under public control will not be snatched away by any crowd of speculators willing to do the things necessary to get a majority of the Senate.

Governor McCall and the members of the sub-committees will have the satisfaction soon of seeing one of the greatest pieces of constructive legislation ever passed in Massachusetts become an example for the rest of the country. This bill when enacted will be a milestone in the economic and social and political progress of America. It will be one of those great progressive acts which will help to make democracy safe in America.

We ought not to pass the occasion without mentioning the names of the members of the Legislature whose good fortune it was to be able to contribute something of value to this bill. They are members of the sub-committee having the bill in charge—Senators MacPherson of Framingham, Wilson of Brighton, Representatives Worrall of Attleboro, Young of Weston, Brown of Woburn, Baldwin of Brookline, Feinberg of Boston, Bitzer of Arlington and Murphy of Lowell.

The ingenious idea originated with the Public Service Commission and has been altered by the Governor and the committees to meet practical situations. If the commission should feel chagrined at some of the changes, it will be consoling to them to recall what Benjamin Franklin said to Thomas Jefferson when he grew alarmed at the changes which the members of the Continental Congress were making in his original draft of the Declaration of Independence. The changes did not make Jefferson any the less the author of that great and noble milestone in the advancement of civilization.

ALL TOGETHER IN THE COMMUNITY

Why is it that certain communities are so different in their attitudes toward questions of national importance, or civic value?

In one district if matters of importance come up for discussion or vote, if a certain man or woman suggests them first, well and good—they go with a vim and an enthusiasm that would do one's heart good—another facton starts a ball rolling, all his little cliques bend their backs anoterh faction starts a ball rolling, all his little cliques bend their backs to help their favorite leader or sentiment, and the other crowd sits back.

Neither side seems to work well together, and cannot seem to unite on matters for the public good.

But in another town, it matters not much what is brought up or by whom, every one gets into the game and boosts—helps.

"Mr. So and So has planned a big public meeting," is the signal for everyone to get out and help, and vice versa when the other fellow does it.

If America is to do telling work in this war every heart must be in it, and all must pull the same way all the time. Take off your hat and roll up your sleeves, all together, and the day is saved.

U-Boats and You

GARRETT P. SERVISS' ARTICLE

In "Winding Up the Clock of the Universe," There Is Discussed the Beginning of the World—"Did the Almighty Create It Out of Nothing or Out of Something Different From Itself?"

By Garrett P. Serviss

"What happened or existed before God created the world and all that therein is?—D. H. T. Worcester, Mass."

THAT questions is a "poser" from whatever point of view it may be regarded. Of course, a creator must exist before the thing that he creates, for if they be supposed to have come into existence simultaneously it can only have been through the agency of a third force, or creative power antedating both of them. Such considerations show at a glance how illogical our anthropomorphic ("man-like") pictures of the Almighty are. They also show how vain it is to try to define God and how foolish to hope to measure Him by human standards, a difficulty that has never been more clearly stated than by Sir Isaac Newton at the end of his great work, the "Principia."

Basic Assumption

Inasmuch as God existed before the world, or the universe, because, ex hypothesi, He created it, we must assume that He made it either out of nothing or else out of something already existing in another form.

If we adopt the first supposition, i. e., that the universe was created out of nothing, our reasoning is baited at once, for the creation of something out of nothing is mentally inconceivable. That a visible, tangible thing may be formed out of something previously invisible and imperceptible to our imperfect senses, our scientific knowledge enables us readily to grant. But all our experience and all our reasoning based upon verifiable grounds protest against the assertion that out of absolutely nothing something can be produced.

If we admit the possibility of such an act of creation, we are compelled at the same time to say that it lies beyond our scope. We cannot get a firm mental grasp upon it, for the instant we try to understand the process of the miracle we find our minds inevitably picturing the supposed nothing as, after all, an indefinite something, just as we are lost in haze when we attempt to represent absolute infinity, although of relative infinity we have a mathematical conception which works intellectual wonders. And then as to God himself. Was he, too, nothing? Did Nothing act upon Nothing, or Something upon Nothing?

But when we take the supposition that the universe was not created out of nothing, but out of a pre-existing something, simply differing in form, all becomes smooth sailing because now we are dealing with what we can understand, something that touches at least the borders of our experience. Upon that view there are two things whose existence preceded the universe, viz., the creative power and the material on which that power worked, as in physical science we have energy and matter.

Some persons are content to identify God with the underlying energy of the universe, but this seems to me as false as making Him an omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent man. To me God is neither energy nor man, but something back of, and superior to, both and to all. Yet when I say that, I have to admit that I am assuming what cannot by any scientific method of reasoning be proved. No physical image of God can be formed, and consequently no illustration of Him or His acts.

Science's View

If the matter which now forms the universe existed in another state before God reshaped it, then matter may be regarded as coeval with Him; and this is what science asserts—that matter is fundamentally indestructible and eternal, although it may undergo countless changes of state. The only thing that science knows of as acting upon matter is energy; but if we do not accept the view that energy is God, then we must hold that God has dealt with energy just as with matter and that both are either coeval with Him or were made by Him out of nothing.

Imagine a speck of something, wound up like a clock with an infinite multitude of springs, in whose compass were compressed the germ and potency of everything now forming the universe, and suppose this primal automaton to have been thrown out into the midst of empty space, free to unfold itself. After it started, everything would come forth in accord with evolutionary law, no divine interference being required; but would that fact belittle the creator of the original mechanism?

All its powers would have been foreseen and provided for by Him; but, having released the catch, he would allow it to run of itself as long as its store of energy lasted. That energy would be an expression of the power of the Creator, but it would not be the Creator nor the equal of the Creator. When the springs had run down, the hand would again have to be applied to the winding key, if the system were to be continued.

We know that the energies of suns run down, letting them cool off, a fact which alone is sufficient to show that the universe, as it stands, is a temporary thing. Who can tell how many times it has been wound up?

The Colossus

By GERTRUDE JOHNSON.

ONE foot enturfed in France's bleeding fields,
And one upon the homeland soil that yields
The sustenance of nations, glorified
Columbia stands, and sword unsheathed wields,

Starred with lights her silken gloom of hair;
And fiery purpose red streams through the air
Like seven warrior comets striking light
Across the night burned black with world-despair.

Right arm stretched to the east and flaming sword,
In all-commanding voice, the thundrous word
Of war she sounds, and from her plenteous horn
Pours into shot-scarred France her patriot horde.

Columbia, thy light stabs like a spear;
Already in thy foemen's breasts a fear
Has pierced; and from their hearts strength ebbs;
Lo, on their faces writhes the boasting jeer.

Yea, when mine ears break with the sound of guns;
And with the Desolation that the Huns
have strewn on the cracked plains, my sad eyes ache;
And monstrous, black Destructions blind the suns:—

Then Thou, whose marble pedestal is wrought
Of blood and blue veins of those hearts that sought
Religious freedom in the Western wilds,
Dost scorn my trembling fear, my wavering thought.

A crown of strength is thy star-jeweled hair;
Thy vengeance streaks the skies with colors fair.
While yet my small faith questions this dark age,
Thy Right, colossal, answers all my prayer.

Japanese Women Ardent Red Cross Workers

"Few Americans realize how much Japan has done during this war for the Red Cross," says the Foreign Press Bureau of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defence. "Her Red Cross membership far exceeded ours in the early days of the war; and she maintained hospitals in England, France and Russia for a whole year, just as we did.

"Like our own, these hospitals had to be given up for a time for lack of funds. After this, however, Japan subscribed and sent a million dollars to the wounded of the allies, to be divided pro rata among them."

Soldiers Seek Lower Railroad Fares

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

When are the railroads going to consider their soldier boys by reducing the railroad fares? There are some camps which enjoy this privilege, why not all? A big majority of the boys would like to see their loving wives, mothers and friends once before going "over there," but cannot do so owing to the excessive railroad fares.

IF I WERE SIX, OR SWEET SIXTEEN, AGAIN

By Winifred Black

DO you remember the first garden you ever had—your very own garden, I mean, out in the corner of the side yard?

Lettuce you had in it, and radishes and little green onions, all cool and white and silvery. Sometimes you got awfully tired of that garden, but when there was company and your mother passed the radishes and said, "These are Sister's—she raised them herself," weren't you proud and happy?

And how cool and green the lettuce looked when you went out to pick it at sundown—and the wind began to blow and all the trees in all the gardens round about seemed to be bowing to each other and giving out whispered invitations to a wonderful ball to be given that night in the moonlight when all the stupid human beings were in bed and fast asleep.

Things We Learn

Did you have a yellow primrose in your garden? We did in ours. And in the evening when the moon rose, "Pop," said the primrose, and there it was like a yellow star in the moonlight and the perfume of it rose and made the world an Eden, and some one you loved very dearly pinned a yellow primrose in her hair and leaned upon the gate and hummed under her breath an old song, and you knew that she was singing to some one very far away, and had forgotten all about you.

Nowadays I never see a yellow primrose or get the fragrance of one without seeing again in the moonlight the face of the one I loved so dearly and hearing again her voice that was always sweet to me.

What a dreadful thing it must be not to have any flowers or growing things in your memory.

I wonder if it doesn't make it harder to be kind and forgiving sometimes when people aren't just what you wish they were, or what you thought they would turn out to be.

I wonder if there isn't a reason for the fact that behind most of the men who have been great in this or any other country is the memory of a garden somewhere and the smell of fresh earth newly turned.

I wonder if the patience that we learned when we waited for things to grow doesn't mean something to us in after life.

A Wonderful Opportunity

I've thought sometimes that it would be a good thing for this whole nation if we could all of us go back a little to the old times, or at least to the ways of the old times, and live in simple houses and eat simple food and work unashamed with our own hands in simple little gardens and get back sometimes to the realities of life and make ourselves realize what is important and what is only a passing fancy.

This war has already done marvelous things for the people of this country. I have just crossed the continent for the thirtieth time in my life, and I never before saw so much kindness and courtesy everywhere as I have seen this time. Strangers speak to strangers. Little courtesies are exchanged. The tired mother finds some one to help her with her brood. The old man who is going to bid his grandson good-by before he sails for France finds a dozen strong young arms to help him on his way.

The sweet girl who looks wistfully after the tall figure in khaki when the train moves out of the station—with what sympathy and kindly feeling every heart in the train follows her!

Oh, it's a good world and a kind world and a generous, loving world today, as it never was before since the gates shut against Adam and Eve. And somehow I can't help hoping that this idea of the children's garden army is going to bring something sweet and simple and good into all our lives—again.

I wish I were happy six or sweet sixteen or anything in between. I would volunteer in the children's garden army, which is going to raise vegetables for Uncle Sam—before the sun went down today!

TWO LOVERS QUARREL, BUT END WELL

By Elizabeth Jordan

"JACK, darling!"

"Yes, my precious one."

"I've been thinking."

"Mustn't think. Hurt its little headums!"

"Please listen, Jack. I'm in earnest."

"May I have a kiss before I listen?"

"No, darling. Really—oh—Jack—you're ruining my hair! Can't you ever be serious?"

"I'm serious now. Fire away."

"Well—now don't you laugh—I've been thinking about our future."

"My blessed girl! It's going to be the most wonderful future any couple ever had. It's going to be"——

"Yes, dearest, I know. That's why I feel that we ought to try to be worthy of our happiness. Don't you feel that way, too?"

"Vanity Fair"

"Yes. By Jove, Kittie, you're looking mighty pretty tonight!"

"Jack, are you going to listen, or aren't you?"

"Great Scott, Kittie, I am listening. What more do you want?"

"I want you to pay attention. You're thinking of something else."

"I know it. But I can listen and think how pretty you are at the same time, can't I?"

"No. I want you to think of what I'm saying."

"All right. But—say, Kittie, when you talk that way you rattle me."

"Why."

"Well—I—I—oh, I suppose it's because I don't know the answer. I don't know what you're driving at."

"I'm trying to tell you Jack—but you won't let me."

"What d'ye mean? Here, Kittie, hold on a minute! You don't mean that everything isn't all right? You don't mean you're going to throw me over?"

"Good heavens, Jack! What put that idea into your darling head? Throw over my own boy—my blessed, precious darling—what are you grinning at? Jack Benton, I believe you said that to divert my mind and change the conversation."

"I didn't."

"You did—I know you did."

"Well, what were you going to say?"

"I don't think you care to hear it."

Danger Ahead!

"Come across, Kittie. You've got some wallop up your sleeve. Hand it to me."

"Well—I—I—the only thing is that you—well, Jackie, I'm afraid you're not serious enough. I'm afraid you're a—a butterfly!"

"A what? Say, girl, do you know how many hours I work every day? Ten, t-e-n, ten!"

"I know, but"——

"Is that being a butterfly? Does a butterfly knock down fifty little silver dollars every week? Does a butterfly"——

"Jackie, please don't get so excited"——

"Does a butterfly run a department that's bringing in eight thousand a month to the boss? Does a butterfly get a raise of ten per, as I did last month?"

"Jackie, darling, I'm not talking about your work. I know you're a wonderful business man."

"Then what are you talking about?"

"I'm talking about us. I think we ought to be more serious. I think we ought to tell each other our faults and try to cure them."

"All right. I'll tell you one of yours this minute. If you keep up this criticism you've started lately you're going to develop into a nagger."

"Jack Benton! Oh, how could you s-say s-s-such a thing?"

"Great Scott, Kittie, don't cry! Here, hold on! For heaven's sake don't cry. I take it back. I didn't mean it!"

"There—there! I've kissed away the tears. Now, let's see my little girl smile. That's right! But, say, Kittie, may I make a suggestion?"

"Of course—darling."

"Let's can the fault stuff. Later on we'll tell our faults to each other, all right. Don't you worry about that. Just now—let's forget 'em. Don't you think I'm right?"

"You're always right, Jackie."

"My precious girl!"
